Relevance and the Employability Aspects of the Course

Ind AS - the employability aspects

The finance and accounting profession is emerging as a fast growing profession. In this globalized era, national General Accepted Accounting Principles (GAAP) is becoming rare and IFRSs are gaining momentum across the world. These are accepted as a single accounting language for the preparation of financial statements. This universal recognition of IFRSs has established a common platform for this profession in the whole world and created a need for finance and accounting professionals to gain knowledge and experience on these standards.

The worldwide acceptance of these international standards has created a potential demand for the IFRS professionals. The companies prefer to recruit those candidates who are having an expertise in these international standards apart from their normal specialization in finance and accounting. The importance of this profession becomes more relevant when there is a lack of experts in this area and one can also go for consultancy and advisory service to the companies which are in process of adoption of these standards. In this accounting era, there is a huge demand for IFRS professionals. The youngsters planning a career in finance and accounting may have a bright future by having a specialization in these standards.

Why Ind AS/ IFRS Professionals

The IFRSs has become the global accounting icon and almost all career avenues related to finance & accounting are affected by these accounting reforms. The accounting standards are the principle and practices which lay down a framework on which financial statements of an enterprise are prepared. These international standards have become obligatory for the corporate who want to exploit global financial markets by making a listing of their company on international stock exchanges, by way of joint ventures or by any other mode.

The implementation of IFRSs as an essential norm for doing business in global markets has turned it into a mandatory requirement for the companies. The companies are seeking this expertise as eligibility for the accounting professionals. Moreover, the companies are also facilitating the existing employees in this area to learn these standards. The proficiency in these international standards is highly recommended for Chief Accountant, Chief Financial Officer, Finance Managers, Bank Managers, Financial Controllers, Accountants, Financial Analyst, Auditors and Portfolio Managers.

India has also adopted these standards and converged the existing accounting standards with IFRSs. The converged IFRS are named as Indian Accounting Standards (IND-AS). These standards are implemented in India in a phased manner from April 1, 2016 in companies other than banking, insurance & non banking financial companies (NBFC) up to a specified limit, from April 1, 2020 in insurance companies up to a specified limit and from April 1, 2018 in banking and NBFC up to a specified limit. The Ind AS/ IFRS professionals are in great demand in many Indian companies in different industries which are converting their financial statements as per these international standards.

Certificate Course edge

IFRS are accounting standards and principles set by the International Accounting Standard Board (IASB) that are now becoming the global standards for preparing financial statements.

Most countries are converging their standards towards IFRS or adopting IFRS wholesale, to facilitate uniform reporting. In a step closer to convergence with the IFRS, India, has adopted Ind-AS.

But that said, the application of these standards is a complex and time consuming procedure which underlines the significance of IFRS professionals.

Moreover, continuous amendments by the regulators to these standards require an army of IFRS professionals who are equipped with thorough understanding of these standards.

Practical knowledge of these universal standards will open doors across the globe as 100+ countries have green signaled these accounting standards.

You can work in various IFRS profiles across industry sectors including ITES, software, pharmaceutical, auto spare parts, professional advisory companies, auditing firms, banking, Insurance, KPOs, etc. Skilled and experienced IFRS experts can establish their own consulting practice to help companies migrate to IFRS.

The Ind AS/ IFRS Certification programme will equip you to:

- Apply relevant financial reporting standards to key elements of financial reports.
- Identify and apply disclosure requirements for companies in their financial reports and notes to accounts.
- Prepare group financial statements (excluding group cash-flow statements) including subsidiaries, associates and joint arrangements.

GST - the employability aspects

The job market is looking forward to a big boost from the new GST regime and expects over one lakh immediate new employment opportunities, including in specialized areas like taxation, accounting and data analysis. The historic tax reform, rolled out from July 1, is expected to help the formal job sector attain an annualized growth rate of 10-13 per cent and fuel demand for professionals in various segments of the economy, experts said. Indian Staffing Federation's President Rituparna Chakraborty said the GST (Goods and Services Tax) will make procurement and distribution of goods much faster while cash flow is expected to become more predictable and profitability should improve, too. In the words of leading executive search firm Global Hunt's MD Sunil Goel, "On an estimation, it looks like it will create more than one lakh jobs immediately from the first quarter of the implementation date and another 50,000-60,000 jobs will be created for specific activities for GST, going forward."

GST is expected to create significant job opportunities as the businesses will need to hire professionals for dedicated GST management, upgradation and reconciliations. The new tax system will have a positive impact on ease of doing business, thereby making it conducive for foreign investors and companies. This would help in better execution of all government initiatives and propel formal job creation.

Ravi Kohli, 23, had been looking for a job at a tax consultancy firm for over two years. But the graduate in accountancy and finance was unable to find his dream job as all the top tax consultancies wanted either a chartered accountant or a degree from top universities.

But after the Goods and Services Tax was rolled out by the government, Kohli suddenly found multiple openings.

"I was forced to work as a sales assistant at a brokerage firm for a year after completing my Bachelor's in Accountancy and Finance and was unable to find anything suitable for my qualification. However, in June, just before GST was to come into effect, I got a job at a top tax consultancy in Hyderabad," Kohli said.

Kohli's is not an isolated case. GST rollout is turning out to be a big boon for finance professionals, who are seeing a massive spurt in job openings. According to experts, companies across sectors will hire over 20,000 finance professionals this year.

"Given that CAs are in short supply, even mid-sized financial firms have hired finance graduates instead of just CAs. We expect to see the demand for at least 20,000 finance professionals to come up in the coming year," said Ajay Shah, Vice-President, Recruitment Services, and Team Lease Services.

Job prospects for B.com, M.com and MBA finance graduates is improving irrespective of the colleges they come from.

GST related hiring stems from the fact that after the overhaul of the multiple cascading taxes levied by the Central and State governments, all businesses, irrespective of size, have had to adapt to the new tax regime and go digital. This, in turn, has resulted in demand for specialized fields like taxation, accounting, and data analysis going up. Many large corporates have set up special GST cells internally to deal with the new tax regime. "There are changes in software almost every week. Most of our group companies have set up a dedicated cell with finance and tax professionals to ensure smooth implementation," said the CEO of a large corporate.

Manendra Singh, Managing Partner, Antal International, says, "The most benefited from the GST implementation have been commerce graduates. There has been a significant rise in jobs pre and post GST especially for such professionals across industries. The rise in hiring such professionals is happening across levels from junior to senior level."

Take for example, consultancy firm Ernst & Young India. In its Indirect Tax practice, the firm has seen over 60 per cent increase in hiring. "Almost all our Indirect Tax hiring in FY2017 was GST related," said Sudhir Kapadia, National Tax Leader, EY India.

"It (GST) has provided immense opportunities and increased the scope and span of activity. The mode of delivery is also changing rapidly to keep pace with the change. We would continue to be bullish in hiring," Kapadia added.
