“ FEEDBACK AND COMMENTS

- The college provides ample of career-based opportunities through internships and placement but that is not sufficient for one's growth through the college years (including the society system). The growth I have seen within me and my friends is simply I believe, the outcome of the competitive culture at CBS - which is a good thing to have, but I think it has done more damage to the mental health of students. If only some systematic changes are made culturally - it'll turn into a leverage, enabling CBS students to strive in a much better way for much better things.
- The teaching faculty is extremely good. The syllabus at times gets very theoretical and given that it's a professional course, more of practical aspects need to be added to the curriculum.
College was great at providing necessary aids and differentiated itself from other DU colleges which is what makes SSCBS great
- More sports opportunities and resources must be presented for all-round development of students. Resources such as laptops and books must be made available to economically weaker students and more awareness must be created for the same. More opportunities and encouragement must be provided for research work and projects. More industry tie-ups can be explored to supplement classroom learning.
- Excellent faculty can't be more good great support
