From the principal's desk

Dear students, teachers and well-wishers of the college,

In these unprecedented times, sudden changes coupled with uncertainty can feel extremely overwhelming. While we know it's challenging to stay positive during these times, we must remember that it's essential to care about our mental state and focus on our personal growth. It is with great pleasure that I write the introduction to this magazine, displaying the achievements SSCBS has accomplished despite the unfortunate hindrances.

SSCBS is considered one of the best in the country by multiple agencies of national repute such as NAAC which awarded us Grade 'A' and India Today which ranked us as the best college in India for two years in a row for undergraduate management education in June 2021.

Our students have made us proud by not only adapting to these chaotic times but also by reaching new heights. Two teams from SSCBS were among the regional finalists of the 2021 Institute of Management Accountants Student Case Challenge and one of them emerged as the winner beating the best team in the country. Another team was Global Runners-Up in the SSER Finance Challenge organized by the Stockholm School of Economics. While a third team was selected in the top 6 of an international case competition organized by HSBC. These teams showed us that even during these grey times we can leverage the online medium and make the most out of what we have.

The SSCBS family has adapted to the new normal and has even made greater strides due to our principles of cohesion and mutual learning coupled with our unstinting support for the students and a devoted faculty. I would like to congratulate our faculty and staff for their successful transition to the online medium and thank them for their unwavering support and adaptation to new approaches. As we stand together against this ongoing threat I wish you and your loved ones health and safety on behalf of the SSCBS family.

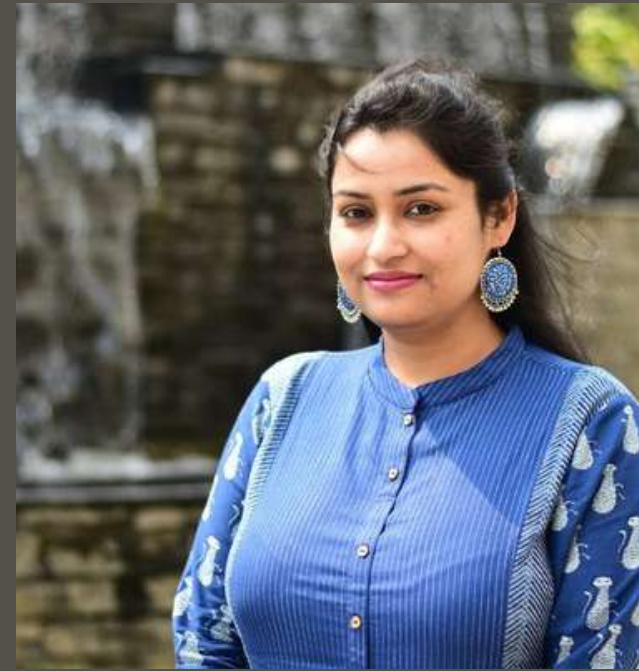

Teachers in Charge's message

As social distancing and self-isolation deranged the basic pattern and routine we lived our lives by, we were unaware of the unmatched change it would cause. For many, this change must have been a cause of distress, whilst to others, it was an integral part of their growth. During these difficult times, being confined inside, some of us used the time given to us to generate a sense of wellbeing. Although we miss the real-life interactions with one another, the warm graces of togetherness, friendship, and compassion, there is, perhaps, a different story written for us. One where we learn through adversity and overcoming it eventually.

In this college, there is nothing we value more than personal growth. Every student here goes through a journey of self-discovery, transforming into the person that they are meant to become. We have all had our journeys, loaded with challenges and travail, but they have all taught us significant lessons. Nonetheless, we have come out of it by becoming better versions of ourselves, learning and adapting to the uncomfortable situations that life has to offer. And this year's magazine celebrates the reformation of our state of mind, the process of growth each one of us has encountered, and how we nurtured it through art and literature.

We, the Quadrangle team, thank the entire SSCBS community for being a part of this journey and for their valuable contributions. We thank the Literary Society for a job well done.

Thank you and God Bless!

Renaissance

A detailed painting of an ornate Renaissance interior. The scene is dominated by a large, multi-tiered chandelier with intricate goldwork and hanging crystals. To the right, a large, ornate painting is displayed in a gilded frame, depicting a classical figure. The architecture is highly decorative, with classical columns and intricate carvings. The lighting is soft and atmospheric, highlighting the textures and colors of the room.

"Rebirth, or the transitional period of cultural, artistic, political and economic reformation during the middle ages."

During the COVID-19 pandemic, shunned and scattered away from abstruse realities built around small screens, we all found ourselves surrounded with time. Prompting a reformation of our state of mind, dependence on technology for life evolved, and an artistic progression gave us the liberty to re-invent and question our individuality.

From the 14th century to the 17th century, the Renaissance encouraged the re-discovery of classical philosophy, literature and art. In present times, isolation and internal turmoil have fueled a different need for reformation, one like never before. Our magazine inked with unadulterated truths, authentic expressions, and brutal realisations gives us the safe space to evolve through art.

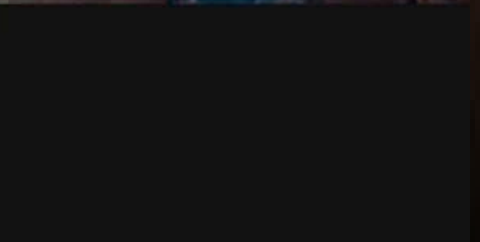

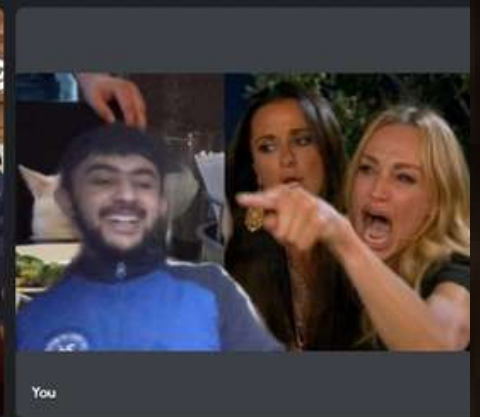

The Literary Society wants to honour the unfolding of self-expression, the growth we've gone through to be on the same page.

About LitSoc

The Literary Society of Shaheed Sukhdev College of Business Studies (aka LitSoc), is a collection of diverse, yet like-minded individuals who have come together to create a safe space, a place where they can forget about their worldly worries and express themselves freely.

We are a community of creative, imaginative and thoughtful individuals. Throughout the year, we organise a rich array of activities such as creative workshops, group discussions, poetry slams, quiz contests, speaker sessions etc. where we try to reach out to language and literature lovers across the country. We also have our very own blog and book club for our musings.

POETRY AND PROSE

REVERIES

Radhika Saini

It's not that we haven't confronted death. For ages, humanity has been churned in the life and death cycle, but something as novel as this pandemic caused by coronavirus has brought us into uncharted territory. Not many have experienced something like this. The desolate streets, deserted offices, and abandoned restaurants announce that our life has come to a standstill. Even in our wildest dreams, we have never imagined ourselves caged in our houses like animals in a zoo. But, beyond our mind's horizon, destiny has something else in store for us.

The world turned upside down for us, leaving an indelible mark to cherish for the rest of our lives. But, don't forget that every cloud has a silver lining. These unprecedented times have brought a drastic change in our mindset, thinking, and perspective towards life. The rush hours that used to blare with deafening horns of cars and trucks and raucous construction equipment now echo with silence. The birds (long lost in our daily life's hustle-bustle) help to calm our nerves with their clear ringing chirps. The trees, plants, birds, butterflies, clouds, sun, and moon have become commonplace acquaintances.

The desecrated nature heals its wounds by shutting the most devastating creatures in their homes. Everything appears so surreal. We all can't deny the fact that we now view life from an altogether different lens. Our solitude was a refuge, but now it is a prison. Freedom is true happiness. After all, shadow provides you solace when you come under it after burning under the scorching sun, not when you are sitting in it all the time. Moreover, we got to know the importance of families, from whom we were miles apart while living under the same roof. Each moment spent with them became precious.

We started finding happiness in those moments that went unnoticed earlier rather than finding pleasure from material things. Those mundane events seemed to be special compared to what we have now. Lockdown taught us that frugal living is beautiful. The necessities are very few, rest only clutters life. That's when it occurred that we have not invented any colours but only discovered them.

We all used to survive in a particular way, steering life's car with a parochial view, according to our pleasures, according to some faith according to some religious savior, prophet, or saint. All these things never brought us security, for in themselves they were just too divisive, exclusive, or limited. But, the turmoil of today's world has made us realize that we are no longer individuals, separate entities.

What affects the few, affects all. There is no escape or avoidance of the problem. No more, can we withdraw from the totality of the human predicament? All human beings the world over are interrelated today. Man has considered himself an individual, separate from others but psychologically a human being is inseparable from the whole of mankind. We all realized that we have a responsibility not only towards our immediate environment but towards all living beings. This total responsibility is compassion. Compassion is never selective; it is the sacredness of all living beings that binds them together.

None of us will ever forget the nightmare of Covid-19 or its impacts but surely it has taught us a lesson that a bright sunny morning is waiting for us all after a caliginous night. All we have to do is just to wait for the night to pass and everything will be all right soon.

"If a person has lived through poverty, war, and love, he has lived a full life."

-O.Henry

Poverty teaches us gratitude and simplicity of life, how small things matter, and how we can find happiness in the most trivial things. It also pushes us to be more mature and achieve more.

War is a necessary evil. Peace is a dream, but war is a fact. As long as intelligent life forms exist, ideologies will clash, wars will be waged, and we will be forced to choose sides.

Wars will teach us to appreciate the simple things we take for granted, along with lessons of sacrifice and hope.

Out of all three maybe love is the most important one. Wars have been fought and people have gone from riches to rags because of love.

There is no one true way of loving, everyone carries their definition of love in the hope that it's the correct one. Love has empathy. Love teaches us about emotions and how to deal with them, it makes us human.

These three things push us beyond our boundaries, both mentally and physically, they make us realise that we are tougher than we think and maybe make us feel alive.

WAR.
POVERTY.

CONTEMPORARY EFFECTS:
A FELINE
DISSERTATION

BY SAHEB SINGH

He is quite a naive fellow, my butler. His wife calls him Harry but I think that he is more of a Dave. He is not the best employee out there: he brings me my supper late, disturbs me while I am sleeping, and is generally quite careless. However, I always end up forgiving him for he is an honest worker. He takes me to the library every day and reads to me all kinds of literature penned by the homo sapiens. I do occasionally listen intently when those writers have something interesting to say but mostly I just doze off while my thick-headed friend loses himself in those meaningless words.

Today, Harry chose to not read me a book but instead joined a reader's group where they gossip about their mundane lives. Most of these folks are, as the human kids say - cuties, with their noses buried in books and their eyes gleaming with the knowledge of their inescapable doom. Except for, well, the red-headed dude. That bloke is an arrogant prick who doesn't know anything he talks about and incessantly goes on and on about the number of books he has devoured which only seem to impress the waiter, you know, the guy whom he pays.

While they all sat together in a circle discussing politics, Darcy's new lover, and their newfound love for Urdu poetry, that prick looked at Harry and asked "Have you read anything interesting of late, Harry?"

My poor servant Harry doesn't do well under pressure. He looked at me for a few seconds before replying "I... I have read the works of R.C. Felidae on 'Renaissance', quite fascinating they are".

Mr. Prick looked at him condescendingly and said "Let us leave the Renaissance to the painters, shall we? Besides, the works of that man are mediocre at best". Few in the circle laughed as Harry turned all red.

That's when I knew that I had to step in and suck the happiness out of Red's life. I strode across the room and sat next to him. When I knew that I had all eyes on me, I started "And why do you think that this is not a topic fit enough for discussion by well-read men such as yourselves, kind sir?

Everyone in the room was startled because I had never uttered a single word to them before. I usually just sat in the corner, judging others and playing pranks on Darcy's new companion. He closed his gaping mouth and made the face that he always makes before he starts droning "Well, for starters, Renaissance has already been discussed to death. There are countless books, poems, epilogues, and even paintings that discuss it in detail so I see no need for us to waste our time on it. About Mr. Feline's work, I find them dismal due to his vague ramblings and bizarre concepts. He says a Renaissance is a recurring process, "weird man."

I realized the grave blunder that I had committed. I could have spent my afternoon stuffing my face with cookies and then napping but here I was, talking to this doofus. I sighed and replied, "Why do you think that is weird? Our life has been shaped by changes, minor and major. Some of them transform our lives at their very fundamentals. Isn't that a Renaissance of a kind?"

Harry sat silently as the discussion progressed. He was probably thankful that I had rescued him from this conversation that was obviously beyond him. Or he was probably eyeing his neighbour, Mrs. Darcy.

"You seem confused," he said to me. "Renaissance was a major movement that changed Europe fundamentally, be it their politics, culture, or their society. Such reformations happen in centuries, not routinely."

"If your perception is dismal, then definitely. The society that is today has never been before and never will it be the same.

I assume that the person you were in your youth and the one you are now is pillars apart. Every second there are a thousand changes. Some are subtle, they blend in the existing fabric of the universe, and life continues as it is. Some, they break this fabric, they usher in a revolution.” Red chuckled, “Are we discussing revolutions now? Your mind seems chaotic”

“Chaos is an old friend, he sometimes brings me mint cookies,” I told him. “What was Renaissance if not a revolution? It literally changed everything people once believed’

Mr. Redhead waved his hands in the air. He no longer knew how to continue with the argument. He sipped his tea and then his eyes glimmered. He probably thought that he had something that could turn the tables.

“What revolution do you see happening today? We’ve had the same government for years; our lives have been monotonous since forever. People are the same as they were decades back. Your theories don’t work, do they?”

I didn’t say anything for a minute. I love making people feel like they have won before tearing them down. I give myself brownie points if they fall on the ground wailing and scarred for life.

“Pardon me if I say something wrong, sir, because unlike yourself I lead a very happening life. Nonetheless, you have lived through a war and several economic crashes. Your wife left you last year, didn’t she? Didn’t that change your life completely? Besides, even if you are not in a Renaissance, you are at the brink of one. Men shall topple many governments and form, even more, you shall continue to face the problems you do today- war, strife, hunger, and pain. Yet man will survive those, by changing.

I do not mean physical changes sir, just to be clear. I meant the greater changes- the changes in society, lifestyle, psyche, and above all, art. Fundamentally, man has been what he has been since the first dawn, I'll give you that. But everything else has changed. There have been countless Renaissance and countless more will happen. It is the undeniable truth."

I did not wait for him to interject.

"Yet what makes a Renaissance a revolution is not the series of changes that create it. It is what men like you make of it. Men shall face countless wars and pandemics in the future, so it is written. It depends on you if you do what is needed and adapt. Either it will break the society as you know it or usher in a new Renaissance. Make sure that you elect governments that'll usher in a better society, not ones that destroy it. Ensure that your society not only allows but promotes freedom of speech and expression, growth in art, discussion of new ideas and innovations. Also, on a side note, make sure that you make some spectacular paintings or Michelangelo will roll in his grave and trust me, that's one dead man you don't want to disappoint."

No one spoke anything for a minute. While Reddy Freedy sat close-mouthed contemplating his pathetic existence, Mrs. Darcy burst out saying "such an adorable kitty!". Everyone agreed. They then continued to ramble about topics both boring and inconsequential.

This is the great feline curse. We carry all the secrets of the universe, of all that was and all that will be. Yet, we will never be truly understood by mere mortals.

I guess I'll just take a nap.

QUANTUM LEAP OF A PIECE

SONI

In a Celtic Legend, two Kings sit atop a hill playing chess while their armies fight. Without them knowing, the variations of the battle follow the same course of their match. At the end of the day, one king defeats the other and knocks down the chessboard, shortly after a battered knight arrives and says, "Your army flees sire, you have lost your reign". This fable holds the view that many held and still hold), that chess mirrors life.

When the Arabs first brought the game to Europe, there were 5 chess pieces, namely Chariots, Elephants, Cavalry, Pawns, the Advisor, and the King. Back then, the Advisor (which evolved into the Queen over the subsequent centuries) could only move one square diagonally at a time. The progress was slow and games would often last days. The game was enjoyed only by the wealthy and the elite. However, with the invention of the printing press in the 15th century, the game was brought to the masses. Changes were made in the game itself as well when Bishops, Knights, and Rooks replaced pieces.

The most significant of these changes occurred when in 1492, the Advisor was changed to the Queen in Spain during Isabella I's reign, and the powers of rook and the bishop were added to the piece (sadly, this was called the Mad Woman's Rule). This change was a testament to the prominence of medieval queens such as Eleanor of Aquitaine and Blanche of Castile and Isabella I of Castile, the cult of the Virgin Mary, and the increasing influence of women during the Italian Renaissance. The evolution of the Queen piece meant that the games were faster, fluid and brought a much-needed balance to the game. The game had a few more revisions and additions in the subsequent centuries (en passant and castling were added).

In 1886 the first world champion was crowned and to date, there have been 16 different world champions. Despite this, the game has somewhat stagnated. The media and society at large consider chess a hobby and not much else.

There isn't much money to be made playing chess and only the top Grand Masters can make a decent living out of chess and even then, there are wild disparities in pay between chess federations. Chess also has lost the geopolitical context it once had when Fischer played Spassky in 1972 during the cold war. Chess also hasn't made much progress on the women's front. Women's tournaments are underfunded and largely ignored by the mainstream media (of the 1600 grandmasters only 37 are women). Parents and coaches still prefer playing women in women-only tournaments and not open tournaments, which understandably hampers their progress.

The Covid-19 induced lockdown and the immensely popular Netflix show 'The Queen's Gambit' have worked wonders for chess. The Netflix show was watched worldwide by 62 million people, and subsequently, the number of chess users of online chess servers like 'Chess.com' and 'Lichess' increased by over 200%. The chess servers also reported a slight improvement in gender breakdown in the users of these chess servers. Through platforms like Twitch and YouTube, chess has certainly seen a new generation of enthusiasts tuning in. During an amateur chess tournament on Twitch called 'Pogchamps', viewership of the event crossed 100,000 (an unprecedented number in viewership in chess). This recent success in chess can also be attributed to the ease of playing online on chess servers through rapid, blitz, and bullet time controls.

Chess is a 1500-year-old game that has gone through a myriad of changes. It has been influenced and is influenced by culture and people. It is intrinsic, boundless, and beautiful and I think the Celtic fable might be right after all.

I FEEL LIKE

BY MOHD
ABDULLAH
ALAM

I feel like the weathered rocks by the sea,
I feel like the dead creatures inside it.
I feel like the world free,
Is not a good place to be alive be.
I feel in all,
The ways that lead to fall,
The ways that lead to rise,
But something in there,
Sighs.
I feel like the lonely winds,
I feel like the mountains high.
I feel like I am doomed
And I feel there's no way loomed
What is this all about
What is this all for
I feel like
Most will sail away
And I would be the one remaining onshore
I have become
The guy I never wanted to be
I have become
The soul I never liked to be
I feel like there's no one
To hear my plea
I don't know
Where I am going
I don't know
What the future beholds
But all I feel like
Is a tear on a dusty cheek rolled.

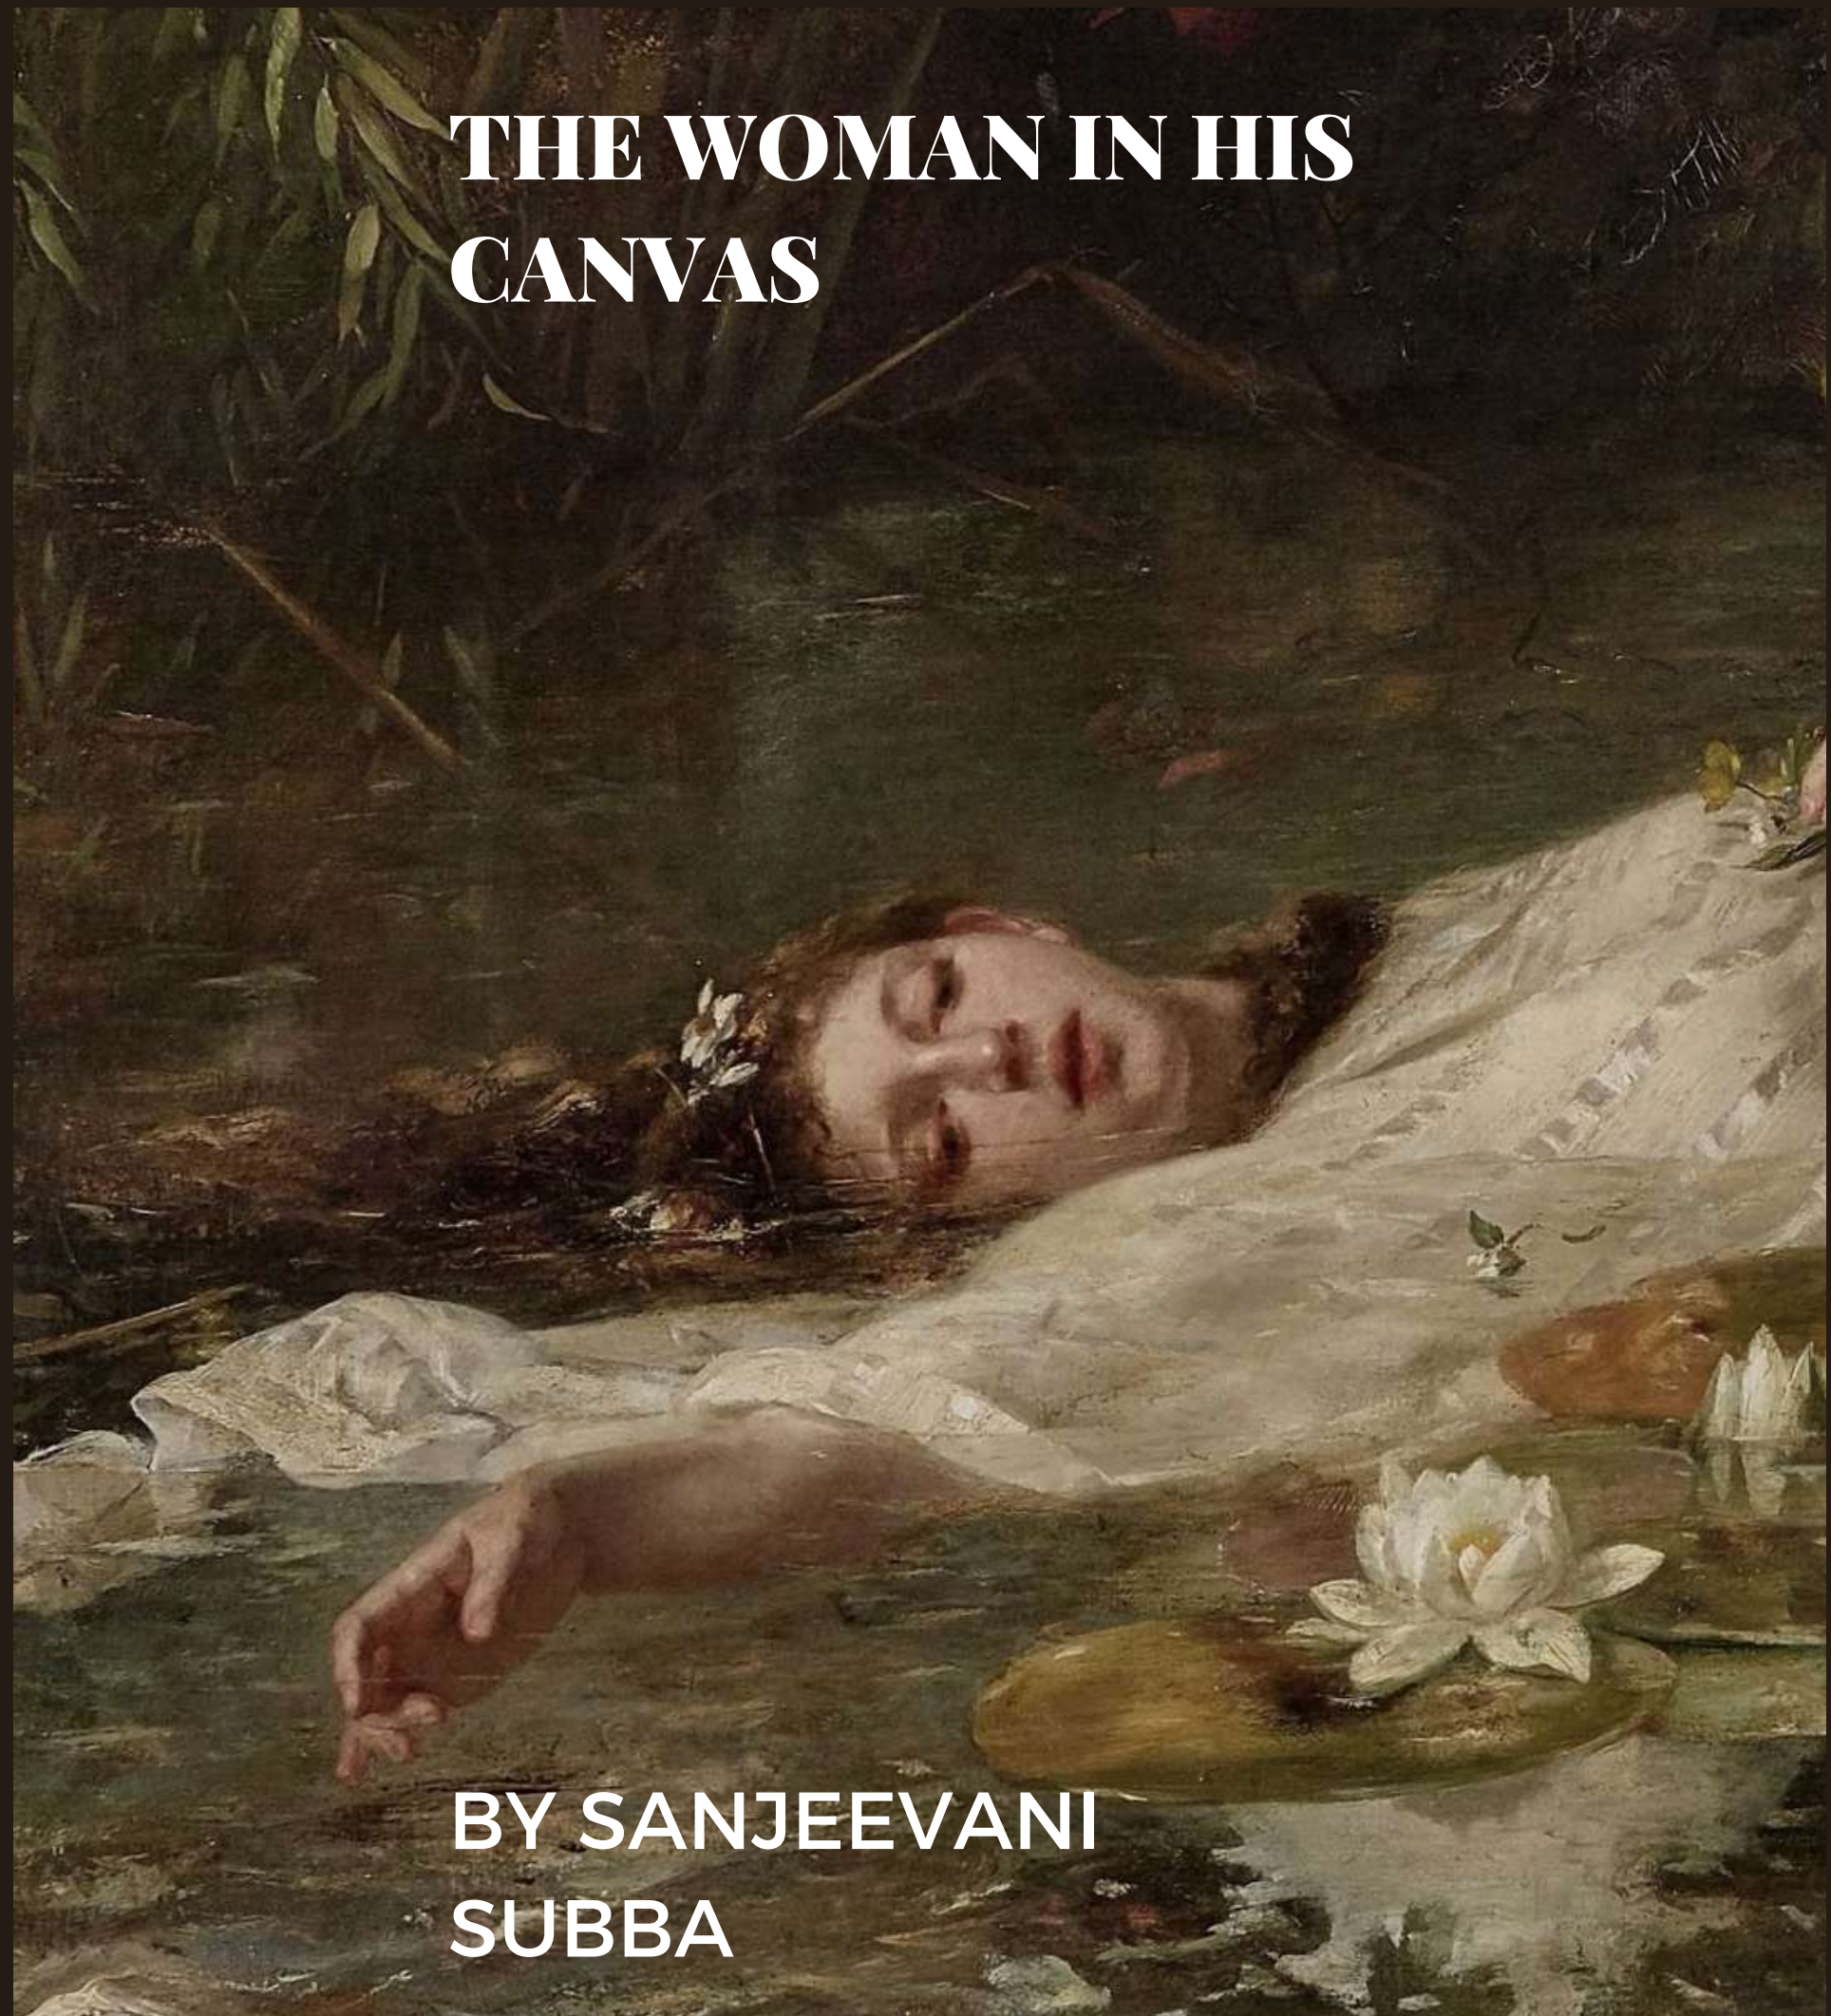

THE WOMAN IN HIS CANVAS

He drifts between his worlds, his complex articulations, a poisemodern view.

When he dips his paintbrush, and caresses it over the cracks
on my skin,
I know I see him,
beyond their perceptions.

It's their delusion that fuels him as the blinds fall down and he strips to his robe, bare, and honest.
But it's him,
and he's vulnerable;
an unfeigned imitation,
truer than he was.

BY SANJEEVANI
SUBBA

A woman in his canvas lingers to life;
she knows the feelings he's consumed for her;
the cruel confrontations in the Midnight hand.
As the roar of bloodstained skies pay witness, to the art left elsewhere.

The very truthfulness they love him for, filled inside the lovers' vault-its intricate expressions and the life captured, to be marvelled in noisy conversions.
There's more to his truth,
than to mine.
For I live in his shadows,
in his canvas,
and they'll look at me with adoration,
almost convincing me
that's what I believe.

History is chock-full of lies and misconceptions. The Earth was never believed to be flat in the medieval ages, The Vikings didn't wear horned helmets and The Pyramids weren't built by slaves(or aliens for that matter).

These lies and myths are however trivial when compared to the myth of the golden age, the lie of the Renaissance. The idea that we went from a period of disease-stricken, dark age (The Medieval ages) to an era of comfort and luxury, an era of scientific and cultural bloom is charming but highly misleading.

For starters, The Renaissance was not an age of well-being and comfort- the bubonic plague was still present and had become a way of life. The mean life expectancy had dropped from 30-35 in the medieval ages to 18 years. The progress in different fields wasn't helping either- scientific innovations were making wars worse. Economic change(due to the pandemic) and increased trade meant diseases moving around and frequent outbreaks. The hoarding of money by the rich meant there were frequent coups and civil wars.

But how did all this happen? How did we make up the history for an entire period?

THE MYTH OF THE RENAISSANCE

BY SHASWAT AMAN

Culture as a form of war

If a leader wants to govern an area, the most important thing required is political legitimacy, that is, the people must recognize their new ruler. Something John Locke called 'consent of the governed.'

Hitler used the promise to return Germany to its glorious days. The British Raj in India used puppet governments. Today, most of the world is under democracy which is a people-consented government at its core.

In the 1500s, a new way to establish political legitimacy emerged, one fueled by increased wealth under the ruling class and decreased political stability. The rulers started spending a shit ton of money on art, architecture, and shows of grandeur. It was a way to show the commoners that their kingdom was prosperous and could afford their well-being. It also prevented wars and coups from happening for why would you want to attack a nation that had enough money to pour into enormous palaces and awe-striking monuments.

However, These allures of the Renaissance were for flaunting purposes only. Like the Viceroy Butterfly, which mimics the bright colors of the more popular Monarch Butterfly, but has none of its poison.

Stories we tell

Michelangelo was once commissioned to do a portrait. The client upon looking at his portrait exclaimed, "That doesn't look anything like me!" Michelangelo responded, "It will in a hundred years." Leonard Bruni was a historian in the 14th-15th century and he had grown up with the teachings of earlier historians like Petrarch. Petrarch had a hatred for the period he lived in and wrote that there would be a better time in the years to come, a golden era if you will.

The background of the entire image is a classical painting, likely by Michelangelo, showing a hand holding a scroll. The hand is rendered with anatomical precision, and the scroll is partially unrolled. The overall tone is warm and aged, with visible cracks and texture in the original artwork.

Bruni was convinced he was living in the golden age Petrarch talked about. So he wrote with that in his mind. At times, he would make up events if they did not fit his tale.

One of the stories that Bruni told was that of Florence defeating 'The Viper of Milan.' The grandson of the Viper was mad, The Viper of Milan had never lost to Florence. But he understood that "Until the lion learns to write, every story would glorify the hunter." And so the grandson of The Viper did what he had to do. He wrote a story of his own, one in which The Viper had won and Milan itself was going through a golden period much like Bruni's Florence.

Soon Venice and France and England and every other kingdom and nation followed. Turns out claiming that your rule had brought about a golden period made for excellent political legitimacy. It's similar to what Hitler did when he talked about restoring the pride of Germany or how the MAGA movement in America works. You don't need to bring about a golden age, you just need people to believe that you will. Or in the case of The Renaissance, already had.

And so we started telling the story of The Renaissance. People in the 17th and 18th centuries used art and artefacts from the renaissance to impress. Any connection with the renaissance was valuable. And 19th-century governments used art from the period to gain...well, legitimacy.

As more value was given to the productions of the Renaissance, the art from the middle ages was neglected and suffered adding to this cycle of the myth of the Renaissance.

This is not to say the Renaissance was bad, just that it wasn't any better than the dark ages in terms of life quality. It was special for the fact that it achieved so much despite the challenges it faced. The masterpieces of The Renaissance were created as a desperate move. The Renaissance was a good era for our museums, not so much for the people of the time.

BO BURNHAM INSIDE

By Aditya Singh Ramola

Bo Burnham's new special "Inside" was released on Netflix. He recorded it in his room with no audience, no crew, just him and his vast imagination. Throughout his career, he was known for his stand-up comedy but the global pandemic had put his aspirations to return at a standstill indefinitely. He figured out a way to express himself to his audience by filming this special.

Burnham makes it clear that the narrative arc of the special will be self-referential. It's a series of musical numbers and skits that are inherently about the creation of comedy itself. It's not meant to be funny but to expose the ironies of what we assume or how society perceives the relationship between two things.

It starts as a lockdown comedy special in isolation without an audience and then turns into a full-scale existential breakdown.

The internet waiting for Gen Z, the most content-hungry, impatient, and willing generation of all time to arrive and make the internet what it is today, which is the center of everyone's lives, and a hub for everyone's thoughts and deepest desires and information for no one's real benefit, except its own. It even tried playing the good guy saying we can pull together but laughed at our faces saying again how we'll take everything all the time.

Because it's what we want, but also what's tearing us apart and it knows that. All of us as species should take some steps back and take away its power little by little. In the end who is to be benefitted?

WHITE WOMAN'S IG

This song isn't meant to attack the masses who post these pictures. It's more about criticizing the way social media is, with everyone posting only the good parts of their life, and how shallow someone might appear through their social media page. It's revealed that the stereotypical white woman has more to them than their shallow social media posts might usually show.

She lost her parents a decade ago and has had to live without them, and maybe that's part of the reason she seeks approval from others on social media. In any case, it's not just criticism of the white women posting this, it's to criticize social media as a whole, and how much we can judge someone very harshly based on it without knowing anything about them, and how most people only post the ideal version of them in it.

The line "Is this heaven, or a white woman's Instagram" is so fantastic because, on a surface level, it's poking fun at performative Instagram. But on a deeper level, in the distraught state that Bo (and most of us) are/were in, we just wish life were that simple and happy as depicted in a white woman's Instagram. That perfect edited heaven we all want but are too distraught to have.

All eyes on me represent his thought process through a panic attack, and he was talking about in his speech part about going through severe panic attacks on stage. Such as the "are you feeling nervous? Are you having fun?" Is his panic and anxiety almost taunting him? And the whole "all eyes on me" is his anxiety telling him not to mess up when that anxiety eventually evolves into a panic attack. Him telling them to get out of their seats and put their hands up is him looking for validation for his content. Also, the "it's almost over, it's just begun" is him trying to tell himself to push through the show but it feels like the end is hours away. "Don't overthink this," is him telling himself not to think about the show or jokes that much. "Look in my eye, don't be scared, don't be shy, come on in, the water's fine" is another conversation that he has with himself where he's trying to get himself on the stage. Another one of them is the "you tell me the ocean's rising," is him speaking about global warming and trying to bring awareness to it but people aren't listening. The song ends and leaves one with an empty cache.

Conclusion- if there's one thing that I hope comes out of the future of stand-up and entertainment, in general, is that it embraces its restrictions and challenges its traditions no matter how hard it is. While I could have watched Bo do what he was doing before for a dozen more specials to come, this changed things in a way that I was not expecting because it's relatable, it's emotional, it's depressing and it's experimental but most of all it's funny and at the end of the day what more could we truly ask for.

ALL EYES ON ME

IT GOES ON AND ON

Shivani Arya

The clock struck twelve and I know not, how to let these thoughts shelve how else do I plea
when everything seems to disagree?
eventually attesting the words of my allies, that it's not my cup of tea
But does anybody really know, what to do, where to go? for nothing here is making sense and all I see is endless yet, for once I think, for once I want, for once I wish being the best of me is not an act too childish and every desire of mine is a dream come true with a never-ending hope that guides me through and through
Alas! this imagination of mine is put to work always in the dark unaware of all the ifs and buts that lurk waiting to make a sharp remark so is the culprit really my mind where all my thoughts are confined?
or is it the fault of me and my present combined that drags me back, to a world so unkind?
Oh this war of thoughts, struck the peace of silence and the rebel rises in the form of my poetry for my pen doesn't know how to stop
It goes on and on!
It goes on and on!

MARK-IT

180 DEGREES CONSULTING

Mark-It is one of the premier marketing societies in the DU circuit. We believe in transcending expectations and catalyzing innovation through collective efforts. The excellence portrayed by each member of the society is evident of the prestigious status that the society holds. We host Excelsior, a pan India marketing cum management conclave. It is one of the biggest management conclaves in India with innovative marketing techniques and a huge footfall. Mark-It is not limited to the SSCBS domain.

We have Mark-It Hansraj, a chapter of Mark-It SSCBS, and many more are in the pipeline.

This year, we have completed several live projects in the fields of marketing, market research, and strategy development with organizations such as Schbang, BlackCab, Lemonbowl, Neos Angel Network among others.

Mark & Tonic, the social media marketing division of Mark-It, performs in-depth analysis of brands and provides moment-marketing, informative posts in an eye-catching form. Further, based on our research of the brand value and consumer offering, we create dedicated campaigns for them. We also launched Mark-It Insights, which is a bi-weekly blog Series, giving you an understanding of a plethora of topics, ranging from advertising to marketing along with others.

180 DC is the world's largest consultancy for non-profits and social enterprises, with active operations in more than 40 countries. We work on bringing innovative, practical, and feasible solutions to the table for the problem statements presented by various organizations. Our international chapter has worked with esteemed organizations like UNHCR, Red Cross, Amnesty, and Oxfam. We at 180 DC SSCBS have provided our services in the fields of expansion consulting, market entry assistance, project feasibility analysis, financial management, product consulting, impact assessment, opinion surveys, human resource, content management, and due diligence services to 13+ renowned organizations including a World Economic Forum initiative, a start-up cloud kitchen and Save the Children, an international initiative whose Indian branch has become a core group member of NITI Aayog's committee on integrated development. Under the guidance of our industry mentors from Bain & Co, Accenture, Accel, and BCG, we conduct regular consultant training sessions including but not limited to product management, consulting frameworks, drafting project reports, financial modelling, client communication and personal leadership. With the rich resources 180 DC has generated with the help of branches all over the world, our consultants actively explore new domains and have created 16 quality reports. Additionally, as we believe in collective learning, we recently joined forces with our sister branch at the University of California, Los Angeles, to conduct a training session on storyboarding and slide design.

INSTITUTE OF MANAGEMENT ACCOUNTANTS, SSCBS

NUCLEUS

IMA SSCBS aims to provide its members with a forum for research, practice development, education, knowledge sharing, and a wide array of opportunities to enhance their leadership experience through mentoring, recognition programs, networking opportunities, etc. as well as inspire the next generation of accounting and finance professionals.

The coronavirus pandemic has completely changed the way college societies operate. With communication now predominantly online, we have learned how to interact and work remotely. However, nothing can replace the charm of spirited discussions outside Nescafe with Maggi and cold coffee - something we look forward to doing desperately.

Nucleus-The Analytics Society of SSCBS is one of the most exclusive and prestigious societies in the whole of Delhi University focused upon enhancing the skill set of the students in the field of analytics by providing them with requisite training in various industry-standard applications encompassing MS- Excel, Python, R, Tableau among various others. The society also shares an excellent long-standing relationship with the corporate sector and has collaborated with firms in the context of taking up live projects, conducting speaker sessions both within the private and public sector domains.

Nucleus adapted well to the challenges faced due to the COVID-19 pandemic, conducting 15 in-house Knowledge Sharing Sessions in the term along with 2 internal competitions.

The pandemic had caused a huge communication gap as everything went online. Therefore, to ensure effective communication between the CCs and OCs, we created small discussion groups to bridge the communication gaps

For effective learning of our members, we also took up several Corporate Live Projects in the domain of Data Science and Finance. This year also saw a significant increase in the reach and engagement through The Nucleus Instagram and LinkedIn page, a medium through which we share interesting content related to Data Analytics twice a week.

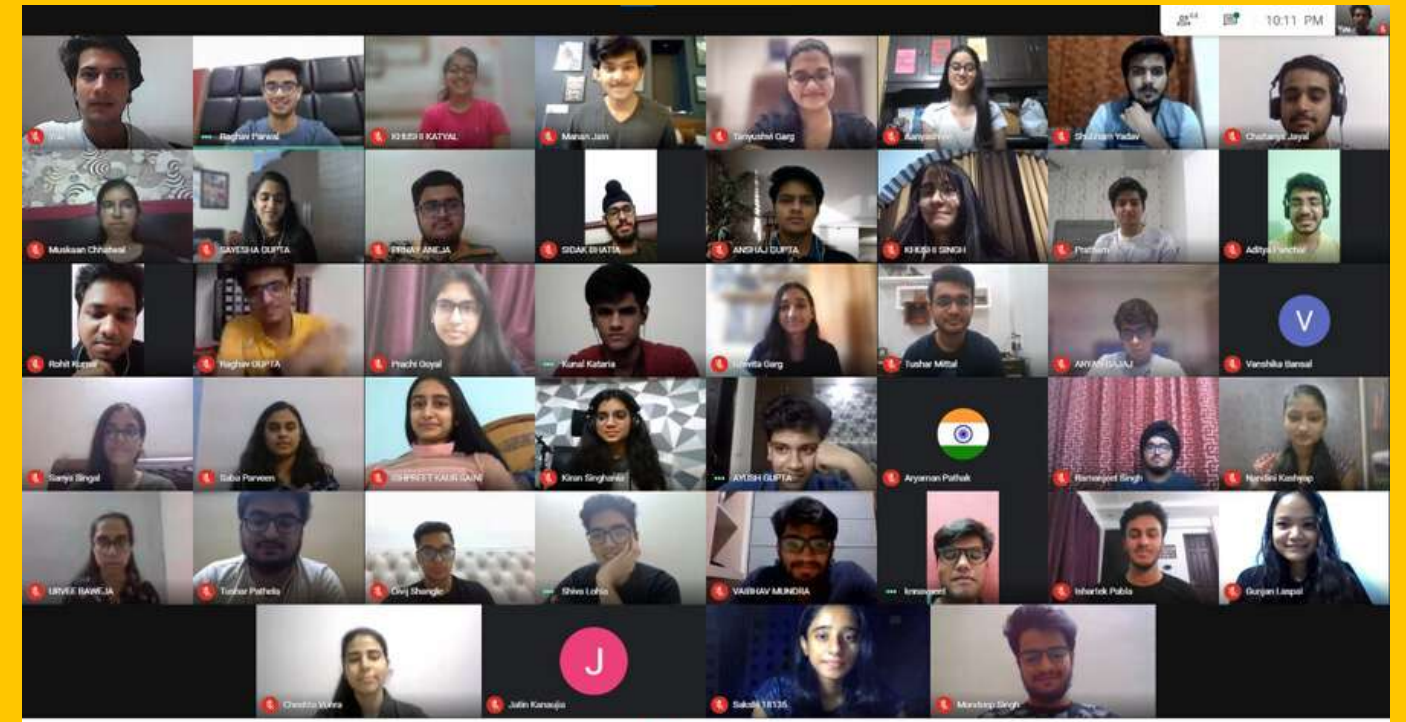

INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS CELL

International Relations Cell, SSCBS, works toward taking the college to newer heights by fostering worldwide recognition. We do so by tapping onto international opportunities in the form of exchange programs, summer schools, international competitions, conferences, and fellowship programs and connecting students with the same. We recently organized the first edition of our “Annual Knowledge Series” in which we invited top executives from organizations such as The World Bank, Goldman Sachs, etc. Every year we host the regional round for the Hult Prize - the world’s largest social entrepreneurship competition along with hosting various webinars and sessions by acclaimed international entities.

International collaborations were greatly affected due to the pandemic, all our existing talks with high-ranked universities for organizing summer schools, student exchanges, and conferences had to be aborted. This pandemic has been one of its kind in a globally connected world and thus no institution was prepared for the change. It was a tough time watching all the relations build over months getting aborted but we strategized and innovated to make the most out of the virtual mode. We connected students with various competitions and organized virtual sessions with the aim to foster an environment for students to become global business leaders. Additionally, we have been able to negotiate long-term international partnerships with high-profile universities in Europe and Asia that would assist the college in developing a global footprint.

ENACTUS SSCBS

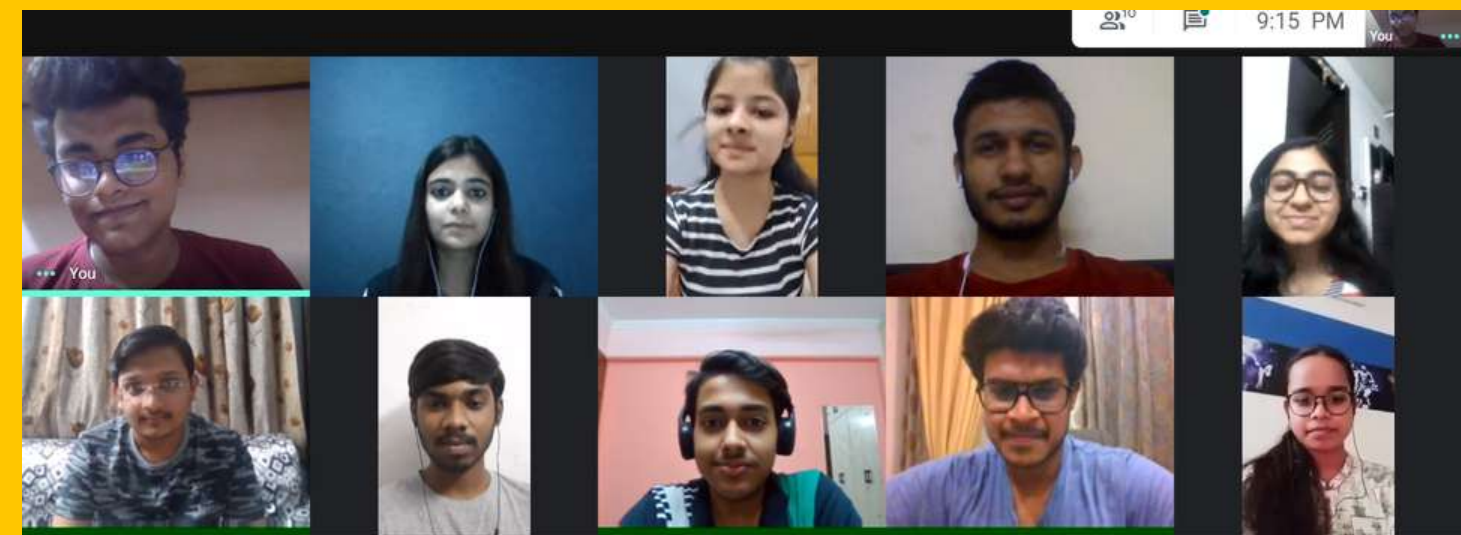

Enactus Shaheed Sukhdev College of Business Studies was established in January 2009 with a firm resolve to empower the underprivileged while nurturing the entrepreneurial skills of students and igniting business innovation with passion and integrity. The team has successfully run 9 projects and is currently working on Project Pravaah and Basera. Pravaah aims at providing holistic indoor air purification solutions at affordable prices while reducing the harmful effects of stubble burning using innovative pseudo-in-situ technique, sensitizing the community and providing employment to the underprivileged skilled youth. Project Basera aims at redefining the path to homelessness by inculcating self-sufficiency and economic reliance among the women in homeless shelters in Delhi.

The endeavor focuses on the upliftment of the homeless shelters and the integrative development of its people. Despite the adversities during the pandemic, it didn’t dampen our spirits. After formulating requisite SOPs, we resumed our operations on-ground. We maintained touch with existing customers and gained regular feedback. We conducted online sales and ensured contactless delivery and repair service. The team worked relentlessly to sensitize people through various sessions in schools, old age homes and NGOs. In collaboration with Institute of Social Responsibility and Accountability (ISRA),

ILLUMINATI

CONVERGENCE

Our name Illuminati stands for a society of the illuminated or the intelligentsia. That is what we are all about. Quizzing is not about memorizing seemingly useless facts or mindless guesswork; it is much more than that. Rather, good quizzing is about connecting unconnected things, working out the answers by trusting your instincts and reasoning, and effectively communicating with your team. The society actively participates in pan-India quizzes and at the same time organizes quizzes within the college encompassing wide-ranging subjects along with the only QuizBowl in Delhi, with the unified aim of cultivating a culture of co-curricular learning. We have cemented our position at the top among all societies in terms of inter-college competitive achievements.

From DU colleges to premier engineering and MBA institutes, Illuminati never fails to secure the win and the cash. We are one of the few undergraduate institutions that consistently qualify for regional finals of Tata Crucible Campus Quiz and NTPC Electron. Illuminati's primary objective is organizing and participating in quizzes. During the pandemic, we kept up the momentum by moving our society quiz sessions online. As inter-college quizzes began to adapt as well, we regularly participated and bagged podium finishes. We also plan to conduct our annual Quizfest online soon.

Convergence is the Annual Leadership Summit of Shaheed Sukhdev College of Business Studies. The most prestigious flagship event of the college invites renowned speakers not just from the corporate world, but from various other walks of life. Convergence is a commendable platform for leaders and remarkable personalities to share their struggles, achievements, thoughts and ideas with the youth and inspire them to bring about a paradigm shift in their lives. Over the years, leaders like P. Narahari, Medha Patkar, P. Chidambaram, Madan Lal, Sudhir Chaudhary, Raj Shamani, The pandemic brought along a lot of uncertainties and challenging times, forcing everything to go online. Society meetings have not been the same as they used to be and initially it felt quite different while interacting over the internet medium, but we learnt to adapt ourselves with the changing environment over the time. Enduring the legacy of being the best and withstanding all the challenges posed by the pandemic, we decided to conduct our event online. Keeping in view the stress, anxiety and depression caused by the pandemic, we organized the event under the theme "Tranquilizing the Sea of Life", to make people aware of their mind's ability to harness peace and tranquility in situations like these and the tougher ones that we can't reckon at the moment, and help them emerge victorious out of these strenuous times. The event was pulled off really well in spite of being online, as it garnered over 3000 views on Youtube live on the day of the event.

CBSMUN

CBSMUN, the MUN society of SSCBS, is one of the most prestigious MUN societies at Delhi University. By conducting MUN, Society believes in the motto, 'Debate, Discuss, Deliberate.' CBSMUN promotes worldly knowledge, policies, foreign relations, and the motive behind the actions of different countries in different situations. The society is engaged in organizing and participating in Model United Nations across various colleges and universities. CBSMUN conducts DUMUN, the largest MUN across the entire Delhi University Circuit, organizes MUN training sessions for school students, and Monthly Secretariat meets. It also sends its delegates pan India to participate in various MUN sessions, making it one of the most prestigious MUN societies.

This MUN season was definitely different from any conventional MUN season. From disrupted internet connectivity, cancellation of conferences to the online delegation, and easy participation from the comfort of your home was the impact of the pandemic on a mainstay of many students' extra-curricular life. The society is adapting along with all other online MUN platforms by giving experience to its members and sending them to MUNs from other reputed universities.

THE DARKROOM SSCBS

The Visual Arts Society works in four areas, photography, graphic designing, filmmaking and content writing. We provide training and skill development to our members in these fields. We capture and visualize the essence of imagination and portray it through frames and visuals. We aim to develop young minds into great visual artists who would go on to win competitions in the circuit and maintain our society and college prestige. The USP of our society is that we don't cater to just photography but all forms of visual arts. None of us had ever predicted that we'd come face to face with such a pandemic. Just like other societies, The Darkroom was too hit hard by the situation as earlier our whole functioning was offline, be it the KSSs, the Photowalks or the Inter-College Competitions we had. The pandemic taught us that life is truly unpredictable and that change is inevitable, and thus we too evolved ourselves, developed interesting ways in which KSS could be conducted online so that it doesn't lose its charm. When the situation had eased up a little last year, we did plan for a photowalk to Hauz Khas Fort but our life said - "Aise Kaise?", and due to bird flu and rising cases again, it had to be deferred. As for the competitions, the photography societies, and groups all over India were not behind, with utmost ardour we had photography & film making completions round the year, yes, though it was all online but we still had almost the same experience and it surely opened us to new photography themes such as lockdown, isolation, indoor, mirror, etc. All in all it has been a really enriching experience!

VISTAS

A bunch of students exploring fashion, we create impressions and go with the trends. Vistas are The Fashion Society of SSCBS. We participate in various competitions throughout DU and other colleges. We also conduct the Annual Fashion Show of our college during Crescendo (our Annual Cultural Fest). Moreover, we participate in online competitions, be active on our social media handle by making posts and reels on various aspects of the fashion industry and clothing.

Converting everything to a virtual platform was tricky work during the pandemic, but we all learned and adapted to the changes around us, conducting google meets for interviews and selection of our first years, focusing more on our social media platform, engaging with people, and conducting many fun activities was a good experience for all the members.

ROTARACT SSCBS

Rotaract is a team of dedicated individuals with the zeal to take action through service. With equal emphasis on social welfare and social entrepreneurship, we focus on initiating creative projects through regular ideation and concerted efforts. Our long term projects are : 1. Project Srijan aims to promote proper e-waste management practices and formalization of the e-waste recycling sector. 2. Project Kamakhya aims to develop sustainable alternatives for the currently used non-biodegradable menstrual hygiene products. 3. Research department aiming to brainstorm on new ideas that facilitates upliftment of underprivileged communities. The short-term activities include blood donation drive, medical check-up camps, animal shelter visit, food distribution, and are aimed at providing immediate relief to the people in need. With the outbreak of Covid 19 pandemic, operations of Rotaract were affected since our team efforts involve active field visits. Collection drives for Project Srijan and functioning of Project Utthaan, which aims to provide for slum communities, came to a standstill. In the online mode, not limiting the scope of our venture into diverse social initiatives, we conducted many webinars with an aim to spread awareness on e-waste management, menstrual hygiene practices, key skills development sessions etc. We further associated with multiple schools and NGOs for various informative sessions and collaboration. During lockdown we conducted mental health sessions in addition to mask distribution and food distribution drives. When the situation normalized, we also collected e-waste from households and channelized it to eco-friendly formal recyclers.

Kriti is a platform that draws artists who want to hone and display their creative skills and imagination, at the same time learning and supporting each others' artistic pursuits. It is a space where students articulate their thoughts, feelings, and individuality with the help of various artistic skills. Kriti is a colorful collage of unique people and experiences, with each stroke narrating its own story.

Kriti as society believes that work is passion and that one must keep going, come what may. Undeterred by the pandemic and despite the fact that all the members were scattered across the country, Kriti rose beyond boundaries by thinking outside the box.

This year's Alla Prima, the Annual ArtFest turned out to be Kriti's largest and most successful virtual event so far, witnessing immense participation from various colleges across the DU Circuit and outside. The pandemic surely curtailed us from enjoying each other's company in college, but the budding artists refused to give up and made the best of the worst. We continued to participate in various competitions from Mask Designing to Digital Art, which turned out to be a welcome respite for all of us during this situation. Some of our talented members even brought laurels for the society in these trying times, proving to ourselves and the world that our capabilities are boundless.

PARISHRAM

Parishram, as the official sports society of SSCBS, is responsible for the conduct and regulation of sports culture at the college. We regularly organize sports events in the college and also ensure participation in inter-college events by building competent teams that can make the college proud. Our college has active cricket, football, and basketball teams. Parishram organizes their annual blockbuster CBS Cricket League, one of the most awaited events in the CBS calendar year. We organized a Football Tournament, Volleyball Championship, and Kabaddi Championship. The environment at SSCBS stimulates the corporate culture that lies ahead but we at Parishram believe that sports are a way to get a break from the daily rigors and maintain a sporting spirit in the students of SSCBS. The pandemic has put all societies in a dilemma, whether to conduct their flagship events online or wait for offline classes to recommence. As a sports society, adapting to these changes was quite challenging for Parishram. The online medium however brought its own set of opportunities for us and we tapped them effectively. We organized our first event in late January- the 1st Chess Tournament for SSCBS students which attracted participation from all the years. The event was an exciting change in the early semester days for students. February saw Dimoprasia - The Cricket Auction that won the widespread appreciation of various colleges and was an enormous success with 100+ participants. Parishram will continue bringing exhilarating events that break the boredom and provide sporting entertainment.

GRANDEUR

LAWRENCE

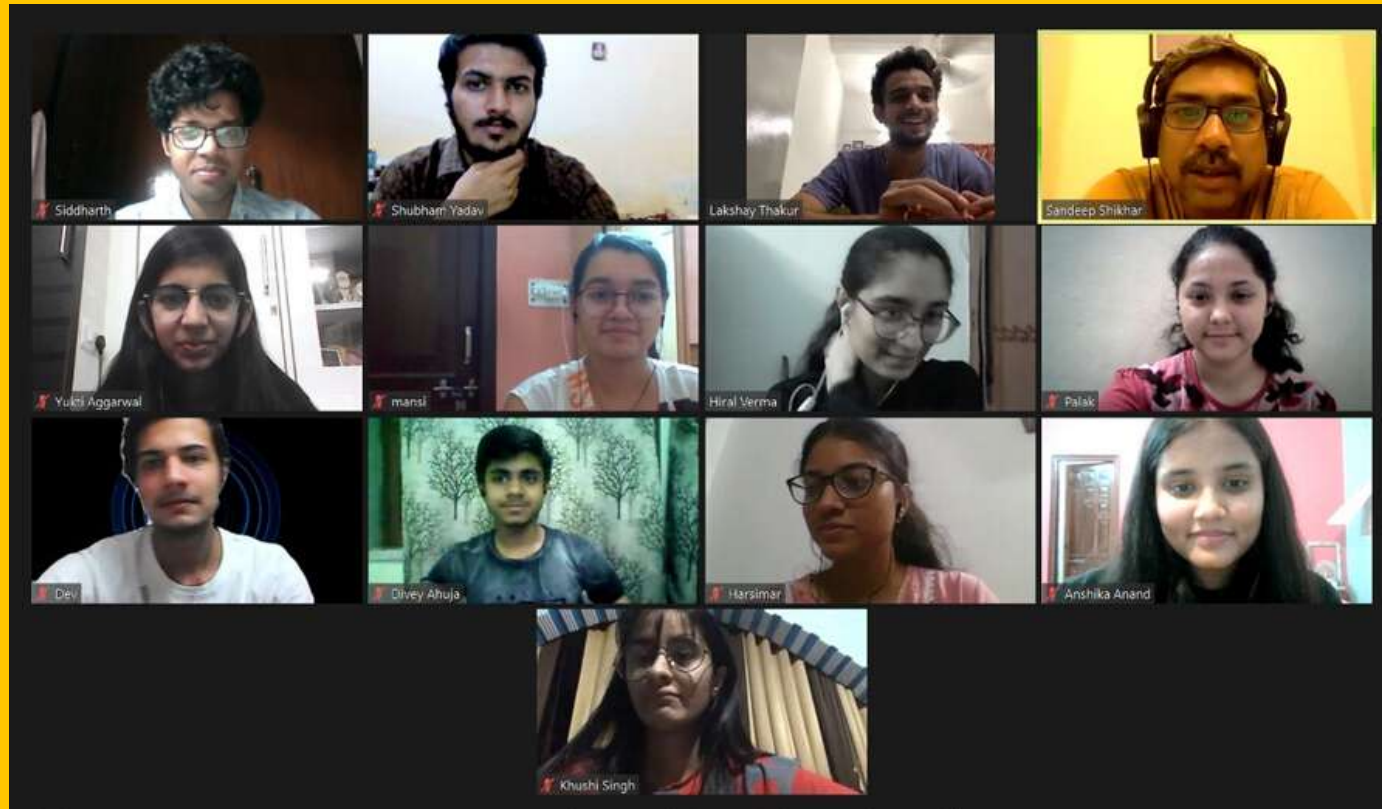

Grandeur is the Oldest Consultancy Cell of SSCBS, DU has a rich legacy of conducting informative speaker sessions, case study competitions, Knowledge Sharing Sessions, Live Projects, and much more to instill first-hand experience and in-depth knowledge under the guidance of industry experts. The team successfully conducted its Annual Case Study Competition - Invicta with over 600+ registrations from colleges all over India. We at Grandeur believe in growing together as a team and helping our society members gain real-life experience of corporate functioning.

Pandemic has surely changed the world a lot. In some aspects, the change has been positive and in some negative. It is no surprise that things have changed for our society as well, but we at Grandeur have always embraced change as a great source of learning. Be it Knowledge Sharing Sessions or our case study competition, everything is slowly shifting from offline to online. However, this did not discourage us, rather we conducted even more Knowledge Sharing Sessions this year compared to previous years and the Case Study Competition conducted online was as good as an offline event, receiving participation at par with the offline event. This pandemic has taught our team to be even more flexible and made us ready to adapt to any kind of change in the future.

Lawrence, The Law forum of Shaheed Sukhdev College of Business Studies marks the initiation of a new era of inclination towards attaining knowledge of the law of land. Founded in 2014, Lawrence has gained a formidable reputation among law enthusiasts from colleges across and beyond Delhi. The purpose of this society marks at imbibing legal literacy among the members and associates which it ensures by holding regular events, conferences, and interactions with those entities in the field of law whose name precedes most and have the vision to impart practical law-based knowledge. All aspects of political, social, and corporate molded into one to give an overall view of the corporate system. Our vision is to create awareness on legal topics and issues prevailing in the country, empowering students with legal literacy by conducting webinars and symposiums and conducting law-based competitions. We aim to develop legal skills by meeting professionals and legal experts, learning about the industry and the profession. The shift during the pandemic was not easy but Lawrence was successfully able to perform its operation in these tough times. The year 2021 started with the successful online recruitment process for formulating the organizing team. Since then, various knowledge sharing session has been organized for legal sensitization among the team. Two sessions were also conducted with supreme court lawyers for imbibing legal literacy among the youth. The society is on the plan to do one more session and the event in the coming days.

FOURTH WALL PRODUCTIONS

ASSOCIATION FOR COMPUTING MACHINERY

Fourth Wall Productions, the Dramatics Society of SSCBS primes and enables theatrical leaders to raise the standard of this performing art in every discipline, create bold stage performances that astonish the mind, challenge the heart, and delight the senses.

Theatre is a very intimate space and any small action like a touch, a word, or an action is very essential for us. In the pandemic, this essence has compromised and we've taken our theatre practice in the online world.

Association for Computing Machinery is the world's largest education and scientific computing society. ACM strengthens the profession's collective voice through strong leadership, promotes the highest standards, and recognizes excellence. The ACM-SSCBS Student Chapter aims to bring together students interested in the field of computing and machinery and help them advance in their careers by organizing conferences, undertaking research projects, and hosting webinars. This enables them to explore, learn under the guidance of experienced professors in the field of computer science. The student chapter was established in February 2020 and in this short period, the team of ACM-SSCBS has had over 6 research papers published and presented in recognized journals and conferences such as Springer, CSI Magazine.

ACM SSCBS was established during the pandemic. Our chapter progressed, grew, and thrived during these tough times. The world slowed down after it was struck by the pandemic, but research and innovation had moved at the speed of lightning for humanity to be able to make it through these tough times. So did we! Work at ACM never stopped. We also made sure that our new teammates do not get anything less than what is expected of us, by regularly creating more opportunities for them to grow not only as better professionals but also better individuals. ACM not only provides a research environment but also networking opportunities with peers and experts worldwide.

KRONOS

Collegiate Entrepreneurs' Organization (CEO) is the premier entrepreneurship network with chapters on university campuses across North America and beyond. CEO DU publishes periodical reports called the "CEO Pulse", covering extensive analysis of a particular booming industry. CEO provides student entrepreneurs with opportunities, events, chapter activities, and conferences to help start businesses. Based on inferences from the reports prepared, we're currently brainstorming on various business ideas in several industries and are in the process of coming up with a suitable venture to launch as our chapter business for the year.

The world is undergoing unprecedented times at present.

Due to the pandemic, online learning became the new normal. In order to ensure effective and efficient operations of the society, regular meetings discuss its operations, shape new business ideas, and mentor students. Timely, transparent, and regular communications with the club members were undertaken. We ensured that all members of the club are equipped with consistent messaging to streamline communications about changes as they arise. We also focused on enhancing the interaction amongst the club members by teaming up for competitions, holding regular meetings. The members organized various knowledge-sharing sessions to equip their members with knowledge in various fields.

Kronos - The Tech Society of SSCBS was established in 2012 with a unanimous aim to unlock new values of technology using innovative ideas. Technology is the carrier of success, and this is what we propagate! Abiding by the motto - "Let it emerge." Our annual flagship event is hackCBS which has not only created its place in the DU circuit but has also created its reach beyond the national boundaries. We also organize various knowledge-sharing sessions like PyDelhi meetup, workshops by coding blocks and coding ninjas, etc. Our key objective is to provide our members with an environment to enhance their knowledge and build their networking skills by interacting with well-known developer communities during the workshops and lectures, which are frequently organized.

We believe in individuality in unity, which allows us to work effectively as a team and still have an area of expertise, giving us an edge over the others at the same time. 2020, the year of chaotic peace. A pandemic, the world has learned at a high cost, is a sickness on a jet plane. As the work continued, we also had some new members join us to carry the legacy forward. The times are testing, and we at Kronos are confident that we'll pass them with flying colours. When we return to classrooms and campuses, we will fall back into familiar patterns. But we will also preserve some of the virtual solutions that saved us during the COVID-19 pandemic.

DHWANI

Dhwani - The Music Society of Shaheed Sukhdev College of Business Studies has been active in the music circuit for the past 13 years. With a diverse pool of musicians with unmatched talent, dedication, and zeal, it has evolved into one of the most reputed undergraduate Music Societies in the entire country. The society has three verticals, namely, the Western Music Group, the Indian Music Group, and the Band.

The past year has completely changed the way our society functions. Being a cultural society, the virtual mode was especially hard for us, but as true business students, we showed resilience and shifted our entire operations online. We conducted society recruitments in a completely online medium for the new batch.

Over the year, we regularly met and practised in an online medium, worked towards virtual choirs, duets, and trios. We won 20+ competitions which were not only limited to the traditional singing and instrumentals, but included diverse fields such as music production, beatboxing, and fusion music, to name a few.

In April, we organized OCTAVES 2021, the annual music festival of the college, in a completely online mode, which was a grand success and witnessed a footfall of 500+ participants across the country. In addition to this, we participated in college events by providing virtual acapella, choirs, and covers for Shaheedi Diwas, Azadi ka Amrut, Convergence, Prodigy, etc.

ECOVISION

Ecovision, the Economics Society of SSCBS aims to augment and impart the knowledge of Economics. Our initiatives, be it our flagship annual event 'Elumiere' or our fortnightly digest 'Demystify' speak volumes about our commitment to increasing the relevance of Economics in our daily lives. We have provided our services to many esteemed organizations including Vahdam Teas, SIEC, Turning Ideas, Perfect Finance, Givfunds, Qthrill, VGrow, etc. Elumiere aims to test the creativity, knowledge, and intelligence of candidates from across many colleges and universities, and is one of the biggest events at the collegiate level, and had witnessed over 4000 participants this year. Some of our recent associations involve Ken Research, Leapup, Prep Junction, LIC, Renous Consulting, Finlatics, GRMIIT, Hospitality Doctor, etc. As the name suggests, our fortnightly digest 'Demystify' aims to unravel the mysteries behind complex economic happenings by explaining them lucidly so that the masses can understand the logic involved. Our associates are completely committed to society's goals and work day and night to realize them.

COVID changed the definition of normal for everyone and Ecovision had to accustom itself to the change like moving from in-person, infinity hour meetings to Zoom and Google Meets. One of the first things which had to be altered was the recruitment process, with freshers running from room to room on different floors, now changed to joining one link after the other. The best part of the entire year for the Ecovision Team was Elumiere but due to the pandemic, we had to give it a new face altogether. Change is the only constant, and team Ecovision made sure that they make the best out of the situation

APICS SSCBS

Kartavya is the social service forum of SSCBS and the torchbearer of the NSS unit at the campus. Kartavya stands by its motto "We rise by lifting others". The aim is to make a difference in the lives of impoverished people by pulling them up via earnest efforts. Kartavya has been working rigorously on a variety of humanitarian initiatives such as literacy drives, community healthcare, and women empowerment. The society's objective is to generate socially responsible managers and contribute to the nation's overall growth. Kartavya SSCBS has started four significant projects in the previous year: Project Chetna, Project Muskaan, Project Sangrakshan, and Project Rakt aiming to assist the society as a whole.

Everyone was well aware of the facts and working environment offline but the pandemic has brought many challenges. One of the major challenges was to conduct all of society's events online, everyone had to adapt to the changes the pandemic brought and get used to it. But it wasn't strong enough to stop us, so, even during these challenging times, we conducted various webinars, online sessions, documentary screenings, case competitions, quiz competitions, and literary competitions. We even came up with many new ideas and projects resulting in the commencement of a new project called Project Muskaan. We also conducted our flagship philanthropic event Vivanté and the annual Diwali Mela VITI on online platforms.

APICS is the association for supply chain management and the leading provider of research, education, and certification programs that elevate supply chain excellence, innovation, and resilience. With over 45,000 members and approximately 300 channel partners, APICS is transforming the way people do business, driving growth, and reaching global customers. APICS SSCBS Chapter is India's first student chapter of ASCM (APICS) with the primary aim to promote a specific niche among undergraduates, one of the most upcoming management domains of the 21st century: Operations and Supply Chain Management. The chapter aims at facilitating young minds to establish connections between classroom learning and real-life application of supply chain and operations management by way of skill development, relevant industry exposure, and collaborations. Being incorporated in the pandemic brought in its own set of challenges. Setting up the maiden Indian APICS Chapter meant negotiations and deliberations with a plethora of entities, sometimes, even operating within different time zones. And managing all this amidst a pandemic was no less than a task. We took birth in a trough, with our vision firm towards the peak.

CBS DEBSOC

The CBS Debating Society is a camaraderie of individuals hell-bent on convincing people that they're the principally right ones in a (debate, read: Discord) room. This enigma is what makes the society a special space. The nature of the activity, a war of the sharpest minds as much as it is of the wittiest words offers you the most exciting and wholesome place to be in the college (where you don't just "network", but bond with people). Over the years, our seniors have painstakingly built us up from nothing to being the most dominant society in the Delhi debating circuit. We have challenged (and beaten) much older and venerated societies and established a culture of excellence. Our vision is to continue growing and evolving in new ways to maintain the standards set by our seniors, and of course, have tons of fun along the way! Even with the pandemic, and debating shifting to online platforms like Discord, G-Meet, and Zoom (where you are proving your arguments to a screen), we have continued to have regular mock debates on the most enthralling ideas. Our every conversation is enriching yet crazy and an opportunity to learn and have fun.

FMA INTERNATIONAL DU

FMA International DU is the first-ever chapter of the International Financial Management Association in Delhi University which aims at developing and disseminating knowledge about financial decision making with a common objective of enlightening finance enthusiasts and providing them opportunities to work on projects and organize events that pragmatize the complex financial world and its problems and thus promote a sense of creative financial problem-solving. The members of our team get exclusive access to financial journals, resources on teaching & professional development, and a comprehensive online library of papers and videos wherein students from different backgrounds come together to provide an edge in Financial Proficiency. Our Knowledge Sharing Sessions with experienced professionals in the field of finance provides the students with valuable insights by interacting with the industry experts. The financial reports carried out under the mentorship of our faculty advisor enhance the quantitative and qualitative analytical skills of our students through in-depth research of the current economic situation. FMA International DU has operationalized during the ongoing pandemic itself. Still and all, we executed the entire recruitment process through the online platform, following which we adopted the zoom mode. The recruitment process was a success, with a huge number of registrations across DU and only 20 students were selected as associates. As the circumstances are quite vivid due to the current situation, we will be imparting profuse knowledge about finance to our members with the help of the Knowledge Sharing Sessions and some informative webinars, continuing with the online mode for the same. All in all, the challenge of everything going online has been well maneuverer by us.

FINX

Established in 1991, FinX, the Finance Society of SSCBS builds upon its Knowledge Sharing Sessions, Live Projects, Competitions, and Core Values. Not only do we focus on core finance subjects like Valuation, Financial Modelling, and Financial Institutions & Markets, but also expand into technical aspects like Excel Modelling & Power BI for finance. All this knowledge gets reaffirmed through our Live Projects which are intricately selected to ensure an empowering learning experience. Our team comprises people who have the zeal to keep constantly learning, from experiences, from situations, and from each other.

With tough times surrounding everyone, the first and foremost pledge taken by our society was to continue steepening our learning curves. G-Meet and Zoom became a constant. Dare2Compete even became of much more importance during the pandemic wherein the footfall in online competitions tremendously increased, but so did our podium finish in reputed institutions all over the country. The society has around 100+ podium finishes to boast about within a span of 6 months. Even though FinWiz was shifted onto the online mode, the participation was astonishing, getting record high registrations which proved to be a great learning experience for all the members giving them hands-on experience of actual event management.

AROC

Alumni Relations and outreach Cell (AROC) is the official alumni engagement and networking cell of Shaheed Sukhdev College of Business Studies. The cell is the link between the alumni who are now trailblazing their way around the world and the on-campus community comprising the faculty and students. The AROC team strives to revitalize bonds and make them stronger by organizing events for the alumni and keeping them abreast of the latest happenings on campus. With many of our alumni reaching new milestones in their corporate and entrepreneurial careers, they have set steep benchmarks for their successors to follow. The team aims to leverage the experience and skills of over 6000 alumni and give the current students a source of industry exposure and knowledge, helping them seek mentorship from their idols. Before the pandemic, AROC used to organize Alumni Lecture Series(ALS) wherein alumni used to visit the campus and give lectures, but due to these unprecedented circumstances, we at AROC introduced a new version of ALS, namely Alumni Web Series. Then we virtually recruited young and talented minds in the society. We launched the much-awaited CARE Initiative (CBS Alumni for Recruitment and Excellence) which is the first of its kind Alumni Mentorship Program of the DU circuit, in which students are mentored by an alumnus based on the mentor and mentee's shared interests. Intending to provide the maximum value to all our stakeholders always keep brainstorming and experimenting with our initiatives, we recently launched new formats of sessions in the form of fireside chat (conversational industry-specific Q&A format talks with renowned alums) and Candid Workshop. This pandemic has taught us to put our zeal, enthusiasm, and passion into everything we do, and working on similar lines, we at AROC are determined to quench the thirst of the young minds.

The cell works with the college for the overall development of CBSites into world-class, well-rounded professionals. In pursuance of our goals, and to ensure maximum growth of the society members, we undertake a plethora of activities ranging from but not limited to Mock Interview, Inceptra- the flagship HR Fest, Knowledge Sharing Sessions, Live Projects, Workshops, etc.

The cell aims to hone skills and push the boundaries to let students learn beyond classroom knowledge and apply academic knowledge in real-life situations. The pandemic affected people all over the world, obviously including students. To deal with this, we conducted various interactive sessions for students to help them with their mental health.

Quoting George Bernard Shaw: "Those who cannot change their minds cannot change anything." Inspired by Shaw, we dealt with the situation as a team and further had upskilling workshops and sessions. We also conducted Inceptra'21 virtually which was a big boost of motivation. We were in a room full of professionals, maestros, and students, we got to know their inspiring stories, learned a lot of lessons, saw a boost in our confidence, bonded, and had fun!

The pandemic affected people all over the world, obviously including students. To deal with this, we conducted various interactive sessions for students to help them with their mental health.

Yuva - The Entrepreneurship Cell of SSCBS aims to actively foster the culture of entrepreneurship by bringing about initiatives that aim to support student startups and entrepreneurs throughout Delhi University.

In its ten years-long journeys, Yuva has successfully organized various large-scale events, carried out diverse projects, and set up numerous successful startups. Vahdam Teas, InstaGo, AsliChatarPatar, Hollr, and CarKhana.com are some of our eminent ventures that have made their mark in the startup ecosystem.

Although the pandemic posed several restrictions, Yuva continued with what it does best; work together to make the most out of unexpected circumstances as zoom calls and ever-exploding WhatsApp groups became the new normal.

We started with organising Yuva Talks and invited eminent guests such as Mr. Jules Maitrepierre, (Founder, The Tutorist and IFSA Network) and Mr. Ankit Aggarwal (Founder, Dare2Compete) among others.

Yuva, in collaboration with LeanStudio

(California), conducted an online certification workshop on Lean Startup Methodology by Mr. Ryan MacCarrigan, renowned for his experience in Silicon Valley. In April, amidst the challenging times, we nurtured a first-of-its-kind global collaboration with the National University of Singapore to organize Springboard 2021, a global start-up ideation challenge. We took up several Live Projects with start-ups in the domains of Travel and Event Management to facilitate learning and aid these start-ups in securing seed funding. We held regular knowledge-sharing sessions through fortnightly online meetings for the members of the society on topics ranging from Networking to Graphic Designing and Tableau. DiscoverE, Upstarter, Sagetics Consulting, MyMoMa, and Thred are some of the ventures started up by our team members during the year. Yuva did its part in this pandemic by donating to organizations like SaveLife Foundation, Kailash Satyarthi Foundation, and Corona Sewa Kendra, to assist those in need.

MANAGEMENT INTERACTION CELL

STUDENT COUNCIL

Management Interaction Cell is the official corporate management cell of SSCBS. The society aims at an end-to-end development of management skills among the students, be they interpersonal, analytical, or conceptual.

The society undertakes visits to various corporate offices, manufacturing houses and takes up multiple live projects to gain insights into the material, an out-of-the-textbook world of everyday businesses; each opportunity encompassing an exceptional learning escapade. Additionally, MIC conducts various speaker sessions, graced by speakers ranging in expertise and backgrounds, all reputable and influential in their field or industry; making their work and journey transferable, relevant, and accessible for the students, helping them broaden their horizon and gain insights, both personal and professional.

MIC is also proud to have organized two successful TEDx editions.

The pandemic has had a profound impact on society's culture, necessitating the development of new approaches to learning. MIC expanded its digital footprint by hosting numerous speaker sessions by industry experts for productive knowledge democratization, keeping the reformed work structure in mind. In SSCBS, the society launched the first Spotify Podcast Industry Series, which has a global presence in more than ten countries. They were able to discuss subjects ranging from investment banking to marketing through the podcast. On March 23, 2021, the society decided to hold the First Shaheed Sukhdev Memorial Lecture virtually to honour the martyrs. They've also worked on Jubilant Ingrevia Limited's COVID-19 strategy live projects as well as IRSC (IIT Delhi), and MindFarmers' research live projects.

The Student Council of SSCBS is the democratically elected body that aims to give a voice to each of the 1200+ students studying in this institution and helps in bridging the gap between the students and the college administration. It is a relatively young body which was incepted 5 years ago in the year 2016 and has hit the ground running by bringing a wide variety of innovative changes in regards to policy matters and has always aimed to better themselves year after year.

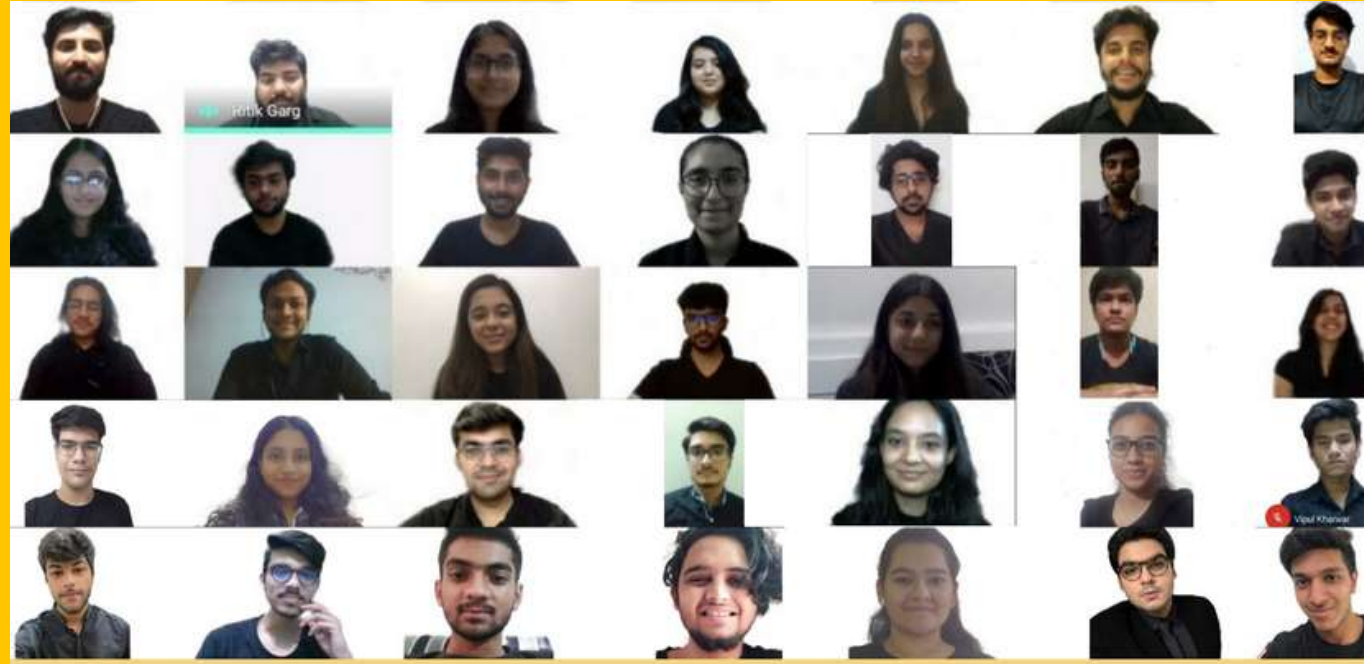

As the pandemic ushered in, the work of the Student Council shifted online. Quick adaptation being the key pillar of strength, the Student Council fixed up a routine for a daily online meeting wherein key matters related to the conduct of online classes, issues faced by the students as well as the teachers and their grievances were discussed. Further, feasible resolutions for the issues so identified were drawn out after thorough discussion with all the members.

Besides, the Student Council left no stone overturned to ensure that every student felt equally and thoroughly engaged with the college even during the time of the pandemic. To keep the "life @ CBS" active and lively, the Student Council took vital and ground-breaking initiatives vis-à-vis- conducting an online orientation program for the batch of 2020-23 students and effectively organizing the farewell to bid adieu to the outgoing batch of 2018-21.

Achievements: Shaheed Sukhdev College of Business Studies was rated as the Best Undergraduate Business School of India in India Today Rankings, 2020.

COMMUNIQUÉ

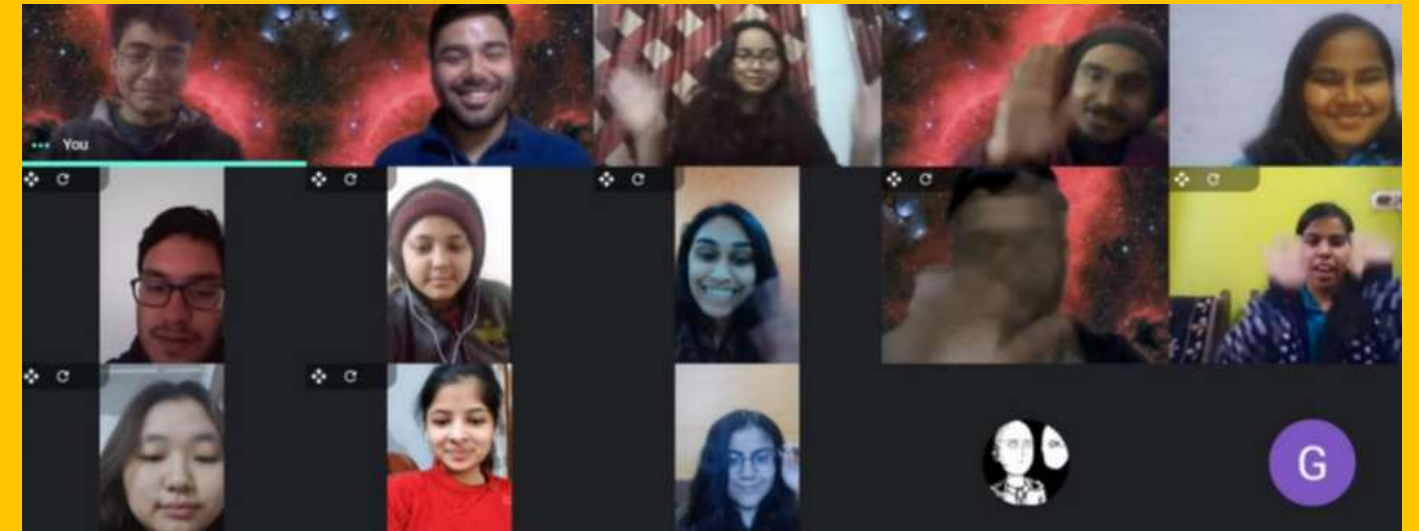

Communiqué, the Public Relations Cell of SSCBS, is one of CBS's historical societies and is inextricably linked with SSCBS. The society is the handler of the college's social media presence, holds great accountability towards the institute's reputation maintenance and formation, and is thence dedicated unilaterally towards establishing and promoting the college as a renowned and globally prestigious brand.

Amidst the Covid-19 pandemic, Communiqué had to switch to the online mode for conducting all operations of the society. The 14th edition of the annual flagship event, Prodigy was conducted digitally and saw an overwhelming response in terms of participants this year as well. The National Business Strategy Conclave with thirteen years of legacy further went global, seeing international participation in 2021.

Additionally, Communiqué extended media coverage support to ICICC 2021 (International Conference on Innovative Computing and Communication), and UILA 2021 (Universal Innovators Leadership Awards). ICICC was a two-day conference organized to bring together innovative scientists, professors, research scholars, students, and industry experts in the field of computing to a common forum. The team also extended media coverage support to various college societies and chapters to further their promotional efforts during the pandemic.

QUEER STRAIGHT ALLIANCE

The Queer Straight Alliance of SSCBS is the LGBTQIA+ cell of the college. Our aim is to make the college more inclusive and accepting towards people of diverse genders, sex and sexualities. We believe that in order to bring changes in the society, we should spread awareness and bring about institutional changes. Through speaker sessions, regular meetings and maintaining anonymity where asked, we hope to empower and encourage students belonging to the queer community in our college. We aim to spread awareness about issues specific to the queer community and bring to focus their lived experiences, especially in India. Through social media posts (such as the queer history of India), we can help to reduce the taboo surrounding the community. To ensure the continuous reminder of the existence of queer community, we also post weekly queer news (queer catchup). In addition, organising workshops explaining the different sexual orientations and gender identities as well as the psychological importance of acceptance will be undertaken to educate the entire SSCBS community and hopefully more. The ongoing Pandemic period, no doubt, has been psychologically, financially and physically excruciating, especially for the people belonging to the LGBTQIAA+ Community. All the same, we have constantly strived to create an impact on the community with various initiatives like creative awareness among universities nationwide, worked for uplifting small queer businesses, conducted a real-life business case study competition for Pride Circle,

CAREER DEVELOPMENT CENTRE

SYNERGY

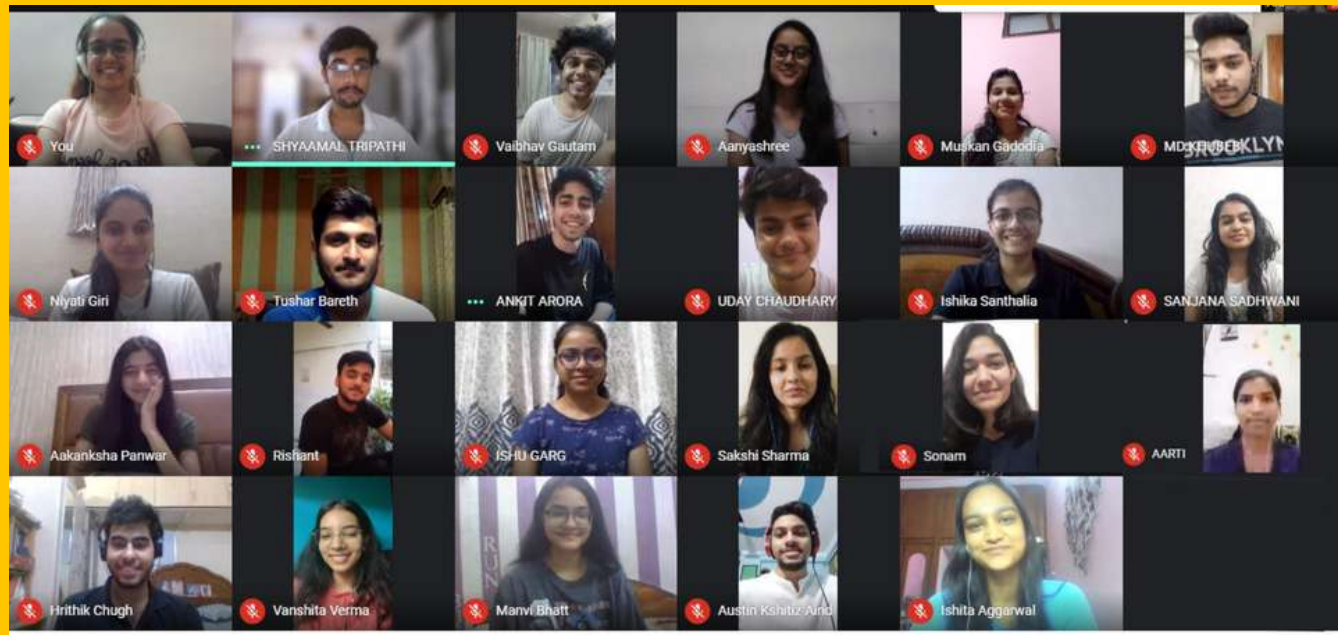

Career Development Centre (CDC) is a team of hard-working students dedicated to the mission of providing quality placements and internships to every student of SSCBS. The team is divided into three tiers: the Organising Committee, the Core Committee, and the Advisory Committee, and is supported by the placement officer, Mr. Deepak Tiwari, who spearheads the team and helps in improving placement records. The Placement Cell aims at connecting the students of the college with the best possible opportunities by providing them with a thriving platform and early corporate exposure. It also assists the students in resume building, personal counseling, alumni mentoring, and providing networking opportunities to help them climb up the corporate ladder and secure a respectable position for themselves. Undoubtedly the COVID-19 pandemic dawdled the otherwise fast-paced recruitments with companies taking up their time to reach pre-covid era comfort levels, yet CDC seamlessly glided through their first phase of placement season 2020-21. Witnessing prominent organizations like Bain Capability Network, FTI Consulting, Boston Consulting Group, Accenture Strategy, Everest Group, D. E. Shaw Group, Dabur, and White Oak Capital Management recruit students for various profiles, the team has been able to secure 179 offers for the students up till now. The Cell also worked towards internship opportunities for the first and second-year students to help them get relevant industrial experience.

The Corporate Society of SSCBS, a one of its kind student organization is a beautiful blend of corporate and creative thinking aiming to mark its presence in the hearts of every CBSite. A place where you can explore your creativity, a place where you can work on your analytical skills, and a place where every idea matters.

Instead of focusing only on one aspect of business, the society undertakes a comprehensive approach towards the learning of a corporate entity. This comprises various activities like marketing, finance, corporate relations, human relations, and strategy formulation.

BLITZ

Blitz, is the Western Dance Society of SSCBS. It strives to give a platform to all the passionate dancers in the college to showcase their talent and helps them to develop and grow in their understanding of the art. After spending hours on coordination, clean-ups, hard work, designing costumes, the team becomes ready to roll on stage. The year began with an agenda not just to win competitions but to foster dance as a medium of self-expression and to build a community of mutually shared passion-driven learning. The year 2020 brought with it the global pandemic and due to this, we had to adapt to the new lifestyle. We loved to perform on stage, meeting daily and practising together and suddenly it was all gone. But these circumstances didn't waiver our zeal to dance. We adapt and we evolve irrespective of the current situation.

We continued our workout and dance practices online, conducted dance workshops for our college students, represented our college in various online dance competitions, and brought laurels for our society as well as for our college. This year we focused more on cleaning our dance foundations and learning new dance styles. We couldn't see each other but each member made effort to keep the team spirit intact. I wouldn't say we shared the same experience we did offline but we worked diligently and relentlessly this whole year and made a lot of fun memories together.

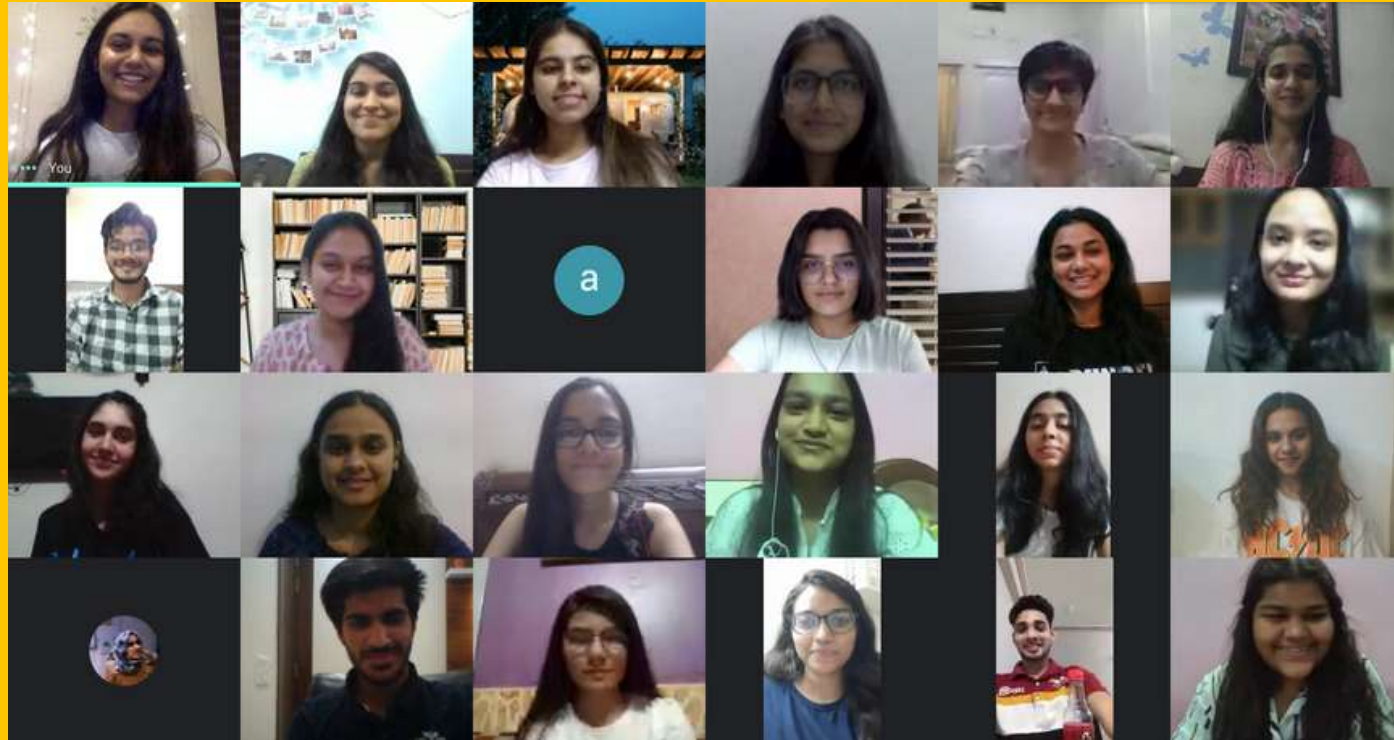

VERVE

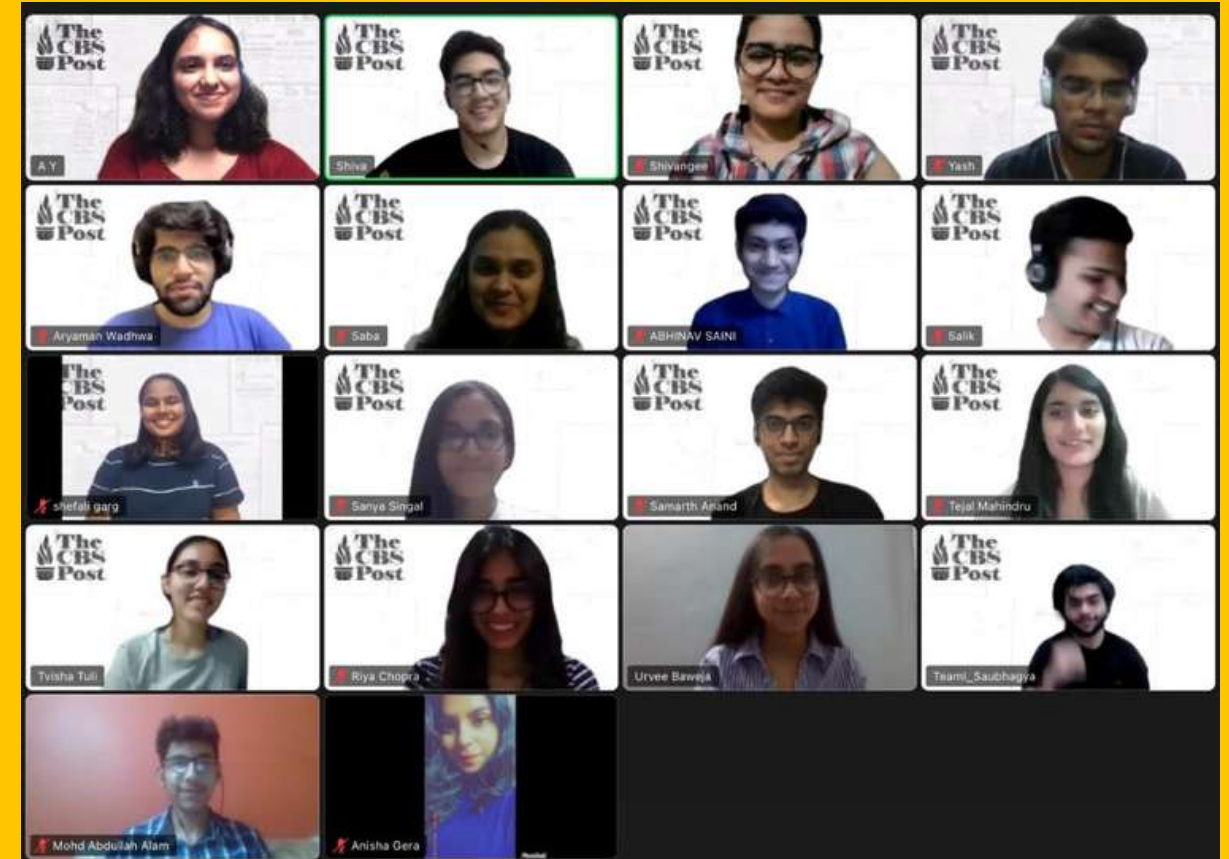

Verve, The Street Play Society of SSCBS, established in 2006 is a group of woke, passionate, and energetic individuals striving and working for social welfare. Every year, for its annual street play production, extensive research, debates, and discussions are undertaken in order to derive a social topic. With more than 50 public performances a year, Verve has made street plays on fascism, emotional abuse, religious fanaticism, disability, water literacy, and many others while exposing to different aspects of playmaking, honing individual skills like playwriting, music, and acting. Verve works on different art forms to express with creative freedom and exposure, enhancing cognitive abilities through skills such as improvisation, topic discussions, etc. leading to personality development as a whole.

Adapting to the circumstances created by the Covid-19 environment, Verve this year explored unique ways to create its annual production as well as fulfil its social initiatives and objectives. Social welfare and awareness is the essence of a street play. Preserving this essence, this year we channelized the energy towards creating an audio play production. Embarking on the journey of online practices and discussions was quite challenging. But finally, after rigorous research and effort, an Audio Play production, called 'Not So Lawful' was made on the topic, National Security Laws Regime in India. Webinars on the said topic were also organized. We assisted NGOs in the areas of fundraising, content creation, social media marketing, and online engagement. So, even during this tough time, our beliefs and urge to work for societal welfare kept us motivated to undertake actions and turn them into fruitful results.

GIRL UP RUHI

THE CBS POST

GirlUp Ruhi is the official GirlUp Club of SSCBS, DU under the initiative of the United Nations Foundation. A society pretty much away from the chaotic (corporate) competitiveness of CBS, where you just find your people and vibe with them on how everyone should be a feminist. The society being formed within the lockdown itself, it's amazing how everyone has bonded so much over issues they genuinely care about.

Even with everything being online, we ensure to brainstorm collectively on ways to embolden the role of women in society through our actions and at the same time find a way to put our creative brains to work! Led by a community of passionate people, we have conversations that are enriching and at the same time very fun! We aim to combat sexism and encourage greater participation of women in all aspects of work and at the same time promoting a healthier working environment. We have frequent collaborations with other GirlUp clubs to have sessions and webinars about issues that align with our ideology. GirlUp Ruhi organized an online fundraising event, 'Sukoon' where we were able to raise 84k for covid relief, and that's just the start of all that we plan to achieve in the near future!

GirlUp Ruhi was formed within the lockdown itself, so things were somewhat difficult for us. But with the immense amount of passion and collective ideas of feminism everyone had in the society, helped us conquer all obstacles throughout! With the pandemic coming into the picture, conducting activities seemed difficult.

The CBS Post, the official newsletter of the college is a student-run organization with the vision to document and spread the legacy of CBS beyond its current extent. With a reach of over thousand students, we provide exposure to ideas in the sphere of management and give people the opportunity to proudly share the legacy of the institution we've grown to call home. With a plethora of articles covering college, business, and international news, and cultural and editorial pieces along with interviews with notable personalities, the team works relentlessly to create a learner centric environment that facilitates holistic development of the readers. We are a group of passionate, resourceful people coming from all walks of life with an aim to ensure that CBSites don't go unnoticed, even within our own college. We strive towards building a transparent space for authentic and intellectual thinking based on research and personal judgement. Through peer to peer knowledge Initiates sharing, we help in developing an informed curiosity and a passion for learning. d in March 2020 as an attempt to capture the unflinching spirit of every CBSite, The CBS Post serves as a conduit to disseminate relevant information about the college and its activities on a regular basis. Despite the hardships of the pandemic, we kept our spirits high and worked with vigor to establish it as the official newsletter of the college. As the pandemic took over the world forcing us indoors and away from friends, the society served as a medium for people to discover everything happening in the college and feel connected to each other, despite being miles away. We made sure to regularly post articles on all concerns regarding COVID and spreading awareness through our official website and other social media handles. The adversities brought us closer, as we stood alongside each other to help ourselves and those around us in this hour of need.

IFSA

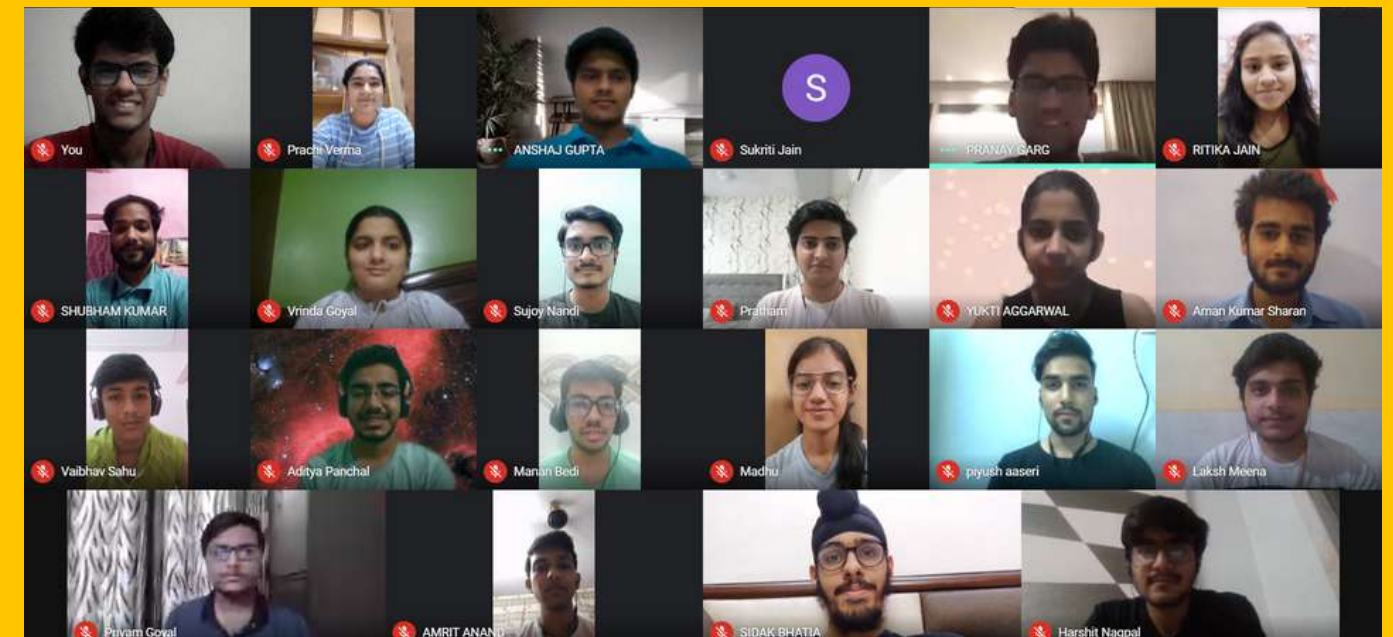

Present as a chapter in various esteemed educational institutions across the globe, International Finance Students Association is a community for passionate students who have an inclination towards the world of finance. It is the largest student-run finance organization in the world. IFSA expanded to India in 2017 with its headquarters at SSCBS, DU. As the head branch of the country, we oversee the functioning of the four other IFSA India chapters. In a bid to transform the landscape of financial knowledge in India, we established the first undergraduate students led investment fund in the country.

At SSCBS, we recruit a group of motivated students each year and provide them with the platform to learn and grow through various competitions and simulations, enriching Live Projects and exclusive member events. We also publish a quarterly global report wherein we analyze macro-economic trends across the world. We have represented India on a global stage and attained podium finishes at competitions like the prestigious Global Case Competition at Harvard and the World Asian Case Competition.

The pandemic and the consequent shutting down of the university was unfortunate, to say the least. Despite the session being online, IFSA not only succeeded in continuing its annual endeavours such as publishing the Global Report 2021 but also undertook new initiatives.

CII YI YUVA, SSCBS

Under the Yi pillar of Youth Leadership, YUVA is an initiative of Young Indians, under the aegis of the Confederation of Indian Industry CII works to create and sustain an environment conducive to the growth of the industry in India, partnering with industry and government alike through advisory and consultative processes. Yi was formed in the year 2002 to create a platform for young Indians to realize the dream of a developed nation. YUVA is the student wing of Yi, where we involve them in leadership, personal development and nation-building activities. The SSCBS chapter of Yuva brings forth customised online and offline sessions, modules and boot camps, tailored specifically to the needs of management students, while at the same time targeting personal development.

Some unique highlights are a Certificate of Completion of Yuva Program; CII affiliated and industry recognised, Internships and live projects, to provide real-time hands-on learning to the Yuva members, networking opportunities with established industry professionals and exclusive learning resources curated by professionals.

The chapter had to make a lot of changes to its work to adapt to the pandemic like every other chapter/cell/society of the college. The entire operation of the society had to be moved online in an instant which caused a lot of challenges. Our orientation session which is conducted by the Chair of CII Yi Delhi and all the details about our chapter are explained and any queries are resolved, was also shifted to online mode due to these circumstances. To surmise, initially, we had to face a lot of problems but towards the end, we adapted to the need of the hour by doing all our activities like meets with the members and various other things online.

THE LITERARY SOCIETY

The Literary Society of Shaheed Sukhdev College of Business Studies (aka LitSoc) is a collection of diverse, yet like-minded individuals who have come together to create a safe space, a place where we can forget about our worldly worries and express ourselves freely. We believe that creativity and learning can't and shouldn't be forced and enjoying the process is equally, if not more, important.

Through writing sessions, book discussions, literary events, frequent outings and several other initiatives we provide a sanctuary to all creative souls who wish to experiment, share and hone their arts.

Our blog (www.litsocscbs.com) showcases the literary works, reviews, articles, opinion pieces and editorials of 35+ aspiring writers, poets and dramatists from colleges across the country.

As the college's editorial board, we also publish the annual yearbook and magazine: Quadrangle. Our event, Bibliotheca, is a pan India literary event that witnessed 400+ registrations this year. It consists of these events under it as of right now:

- The Poetry Slam- A Slam Poetry event invites multi-lingual and emotionally diverse poems. It aims to provide a non-competitive safe space where participants can share their most meaningful poems with the world
- Hearsay- the library of humans, is our most anticipated event, which is one of its kind in the entire DU circuit. A host of individuals from different walks of life and multitudes of experiences are there in front of you as your personal book, as a portal to different lives.
- Bibliotheca also involves a plethora of other activities including quizzes, writing competitions and giveaways.
