On day 6, the children were engaged in learning through general knowledge and English worksheets. The general knowledge section focused on basic and familiar topics such as the national fruit, national sport, and other important symbols of India. These topics helped the children connect with what they see and hear in their daily lives, while also building their awareness in a simple and interesting way. The worksheets were kept easy to understand so that the children could follow along comfortably without feeling confused. The format of the worksheets helped maintain a steady pace during the session and allowed each child to complete the tasks according to their own speed.

The children showed good participation while working on the worksheets. They remained attentive and were eager to attempt the questions independently before asking for help. This approach encouraged them to think on their own and also helped in improving their confidence. The activity kept them involved throughout, and they responded well to the method of teaching.

The use of worksheets created an environment that was both organized and engaging. It made it easier for the facilitators to support individual students whenever required, while also keeping the entire group focused. The children felt comfortable asking questions and clearing their doubts, which made the session more interactive and supportive.

Along with the academic activities, reels were also recorded to capture moments from the day. This added an element of enjoyment to the session. The children were excited to take part and showed great enthusiasm, which brought a lively and cheerful energy to the environment. It also helped in recording the experience in an engaging way.

Overall, the day went smoothly and remained productive throughout. The worksheets helped in keeping the session structured while still allowing flexibility. The children stayed interested and involved, making it a positive and meaningful experience for everyone present.
